

Seeks 10-mill renewal, 3.5-mill additional

Huron school millage election June 11

Residents of the Huron school district will go to the polls June 11 to vote on a 10-mill renewal and a 3.5-mill additional levy, both for a one-year period.

The Huron school board recently approved placing both proposals on the ballot. Support was unanimous on the 10-mill renewal, but Trustee George Angel cast a dissenting vote on the 3.5-mill additional levy. According to Don Leverenz, acting superintendent, the 10-mill renewal is needed to continue operation of the school system. The 3.5-mill proposal would go to update textbooks, repair roofs at the high school and New Boston Elementary School, for boiler replacement at the administration building, and to compensate for increased inflation, he explained.

The school board will begin to review candidates for the full-time position of superintendent which it hopes to fill by June 30 of this year.

Leverenz took the job of acting school chief under a contract between the Huron school board and the Wayne County Intermediate School District for his services. The contract called for his being on the job a minimum of two months and a maximum of six months.

Mayor against now

More public housing gets council approval

With "mixed emotions", Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley informed the city housing commission last week that city council has gone along with its (housing commission) request for additional public housing.

On April 19, the mayor had written council that he was not in favor of creating additional public housing at this time.

Stating that Michael Woods, housing commission director, had asked for direction in whether to apply to HUD for additional public housing, the mayor explained that past difficulties of the old housing commission influenced his decision.

"While I am aware of the need of many of our residents for safe, sanitary housing, and while I am aware of the need for housing development in our community as a whole, I cannot recommend that the city create any additional public housing at this time."

He expressed confidence in the new housing commission's ability to conduct operation of the city's public housing program in a better fashion than the old one. However, he said he did not believe "this commission has had sufficient time to correct those previous problems."

Oakley concluded his communication to council by asking them to authorize him to tell the housing commission not to pursue a program of additional public housing.

Recognizing that the city has an obligation to provide public housing to many of its residents, the mayor commented that moving them into public housing units is the beginning.

He explained that the city also must see that the "social needs" of these same residents are satisfied. Rather than seeking to add more public housing units, he said the city should provide for the social and other needs of those citizens presently living in them.

Mrs. Zeffie Bealum, president of the housing commission, will apply to HUD for the additional public housing. HUD will determine the number of additional public housing units that Romulus is entitled to.

Oakley recently named a new housing commission to take over duties of the body, some of whose members had not been officially reappointed by him following his election to office.

Huron clerk honored

Huron Township Clerk Mary Lou Carey Monday was elected secretary of the Wayne County Municipal and Township Clerks Association at the group's quarterly meeting at the Hilton Inn in Romulus. She is shown being sworn in by Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley. From July 22-24, Mrs. Carey will represent the Michigan Township Association as a panelist at the Midwest Regional Workshop Conference on Elections Administration in Madison, Wis. She is on the board of directors for District 18 of the MTA, which comprises the counties of Wayne, Washtenaw, Monroe and Livingston.

2 Arrests clear up subdivision crimes

Police say the arrest of two young men earlier in the month has cleared up some 25 breakings and enterings in the Meadows and Oakbrook subdivisions of Romulus.

Investigation of the breaking and entering of a residence at 30107 Halecreek April 15 led to the arrest of the two men on the following day, said Lt. Terry Shenk of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

Arrested were Kenneth G. Humphreys, 17, of 30743 Halecreek, a resident of the neighborhood, and Christopher C. Wagasy, 18, who police said lived in Romulus off and on. Both were charged in the April 15 case with breaking and entering an occupied dwelling to commit larceny.

Following investigation by detectives Robert Pond and Gerald Murphy, the two men were implicated in 25 breakings and enterings in Romulus over the last three to four months, Shenk said.

Humphreys and Wagasy were arraigned April 18 in Romulus 34th District Court and then examined April 25 in the same court. Both were remanded to the Wayne County Jail, but Humphreys was released on $2,000 bond. Wagasy, however, remained confined in jail.

Merchandise recovered following the arrest of the two men included a snow blower and a stereo system. Owners of the merchandise have been notified, Shenk said.

Trial date for the two suspects has not been set.

Man shoots at bird; bullet wounds woman

A woman employee of the state Department of Natural Resources visiting a Romulus business in the course of her duties Monday was shot accidentally, apparently by a man taking a shot at a bird in a tree.

Reported in good condition at Wayne County General Hospital is Mrs. Ellen Mikko, 27, who lives near Lansing.

The man believed responsible for the freak shooting incident was not named by police. Investigation by officers of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department disclosed the man who shot the .22 caliber rifle apparently was unaware he had hit the woman, Lt. Terry Shenk said. However, Shenk said the man may be charged with a violation for discharging the weapon illegally. He told officers he failed to hit the bird.

The officer said Mrs. Mikko had left Chemical Recovery, 36345 Van Born Rd., about 11:10 a.m. when she was struck in the back of the head by a bullet which had apparently ricocheted from a tree in which the bird was sitting.

The weapon was fired from the back of a garage some 300 feet east of the firm which Mrs. Mikko had visited, Shenk said.

He said the victim was lucky she was not killed as the bullet inflicted a two-inch long crease about an eighth of an inch deep in the back of her skull.

Non-union pay hikes studied by council

Salary increase recommendations ranging from three to eight percent yearly for non-union city employees made by Romulus Mayor William M. Oakley last week were taken under advisement by the city council.

The mayor's choice was one of three alternative plans worked out by the council's salary review committee for placement in the 1979-80 fiscal year budget. By city charter, the budget is supposed to be adopted by May 15, but past years has seen the deadline passed on several occasions.

In his recommendation, Oakley praised the council committee for doing "an admirable job in reviewing the alternatives for non-union salaries."

Termed the "most expensive to the city", the recommended plan would boost lower salaries by the greatest amount and the highest salary by the least.

Of 35 non-union city employees affected, the plan would hike yearly salaries as follows: four employees in the $18,000 and up category by three percent, seven in the $16,000 to $17,999 range by five percent, four in the $14,000 to $15,999 range by seven percent, and 20 in the $13,999 and below range by eight percent.

A second alternative plan would increase salaries from 25 cents to 40 cents an hour, with yearly boosts ranging from 3.9 to 6.2 percent.

The third plan, not described in detail, would boost salaries an average of five and a half percent, with raises being based on the relative responsibilities of the various job positions.

In his written request for alternative plan one, the mayor commented, "It is my recommendation, in concert with the committee's, that we adopt alternative number one, recognizing that the inflation which we are all plagued with has a disparate impact on employees in the lower income brackets, while those whose incomes are higher are perhaps more cushioned from those effects."

Clerk feted on birthday

Betsy Brown watches as her employer, Romulus Clerk Leonard J. Folmar stands poised with knife in hand preparing to cut another slice of cake at surprise birthday party held in his honor last week at city hall. Mayor William M. Oakley was among the large group who showed up to congratulate Folmar on the 38th anniversary of his birth. (Photo by Jay Young).

$8 Million complex eyed for Romulus

A favorable vote by Romulus City Council could pave the way for construction of an $8 million theatrical and restaurant complex on the west side of Wayne Road, a mile north of the I-94 Expressway in the city.

Council yesterday was scheduled to consider adoption of a resolution approving a waiver of jurisdiction to the Wayne County Economic Development Corporation (EDC).

Last Wednesday the Romulus EDC approved a waiver of jurisdiction, but needs council to do the same.

Should council adopt the resolution, it would allow the county EDC to follow through on its resolution of inducement passed March 14 that would permit backers of the complex, Theatrical Production Ltd., to go ahead with the project.

With waivers of jurisdiction from both the Romulus EDC and Romulus City Council, the county EDC could issue tax-exempt bonds to pay for construction of the 7,000 seat theatrical and restaurant complex.

The county EDC informed the city council that backers of the multi-million dollar project are: Morgan-Letene Investment Co., Edward Muccilli, Phillip Rindone, Robert Spehar, James Hofweber and Ted Elwartowski.

State legislation authorizes EDCs to issue tax-exempt bonds for projects located within the boundaries of the areas they represent.

In this instance, the county EDC must get an okay from the Romulus EDC since the theatrical and restaurant complex would be located within the city of Romulus.

The matter had been on the council agenda last week, but was deleted to give the local nine-member EDC time to take action on the waiver of jurisdiction.

The applicant, Theatrical Production Ltd., will pay an application fee of $12,000 to the city of Romulus, minus $500, which will go to the county EDC.

Seeds to help city beauty

Two City Hall employees form an assembly line of sorts, packaging marigold seeds for the Romulus Beautification Committee's spring cleanup campaign. The 5,000 hand-packed seed envelopes will later be inserted into litter bags and distributed by Boy Scouts to all the major subdivisions in the city. The massive cleanup campaign will run the week of May 12-19, 1979, just prior to the city's annual celebration of Michigan Week. Other activities planned include free pine trees donated by the Lions Club, a guest lecture of spring gardening, large city trash bags for sale, weekend dumpster service at the DPW and much more. Holding one of the printed litter bags is Debbie Hoffman (left) while LaJuan Thomas does the stamping and seed-sorting. A brochure describing all the activities will be mailed next week. 4 RHS pupils win EMU scholarship

Bob Lambert, Lori Wright, Jim Sullivan and Ingrid Larson are four seniors from Romulus Senior High who have received a scholarship from Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti.

The $850 endowment was in the form of a campus leader award which recognizes involvement in significant high school leadership activities. The applicants evidenced leadership ability through practical experience and a minimum 3.0 grade point average.

Bob Lambert will be majoring in theater at Eastern. He has brought distinction to Romulus as being the first student to earn a first division rating in the district and state in the Michigan Vocational Association solo and ensemble festival. He is in Who's Who among American Music Students.

He also has a list of acting performances to his credit. He had the lead part as Will Parker in "Oklahoma" last October and created a delightful Snoopy in "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown" in November of 1978. He's a member of the Wyandotte Community Theater and has appeared in "Cabaret". A tour of Europe with the Blue Lakes Fine Arts Camp International Choir during the summer of 1977 is one of his most memorable experiences. Bob is a member of the National Honor Society and vice-president of the student council.

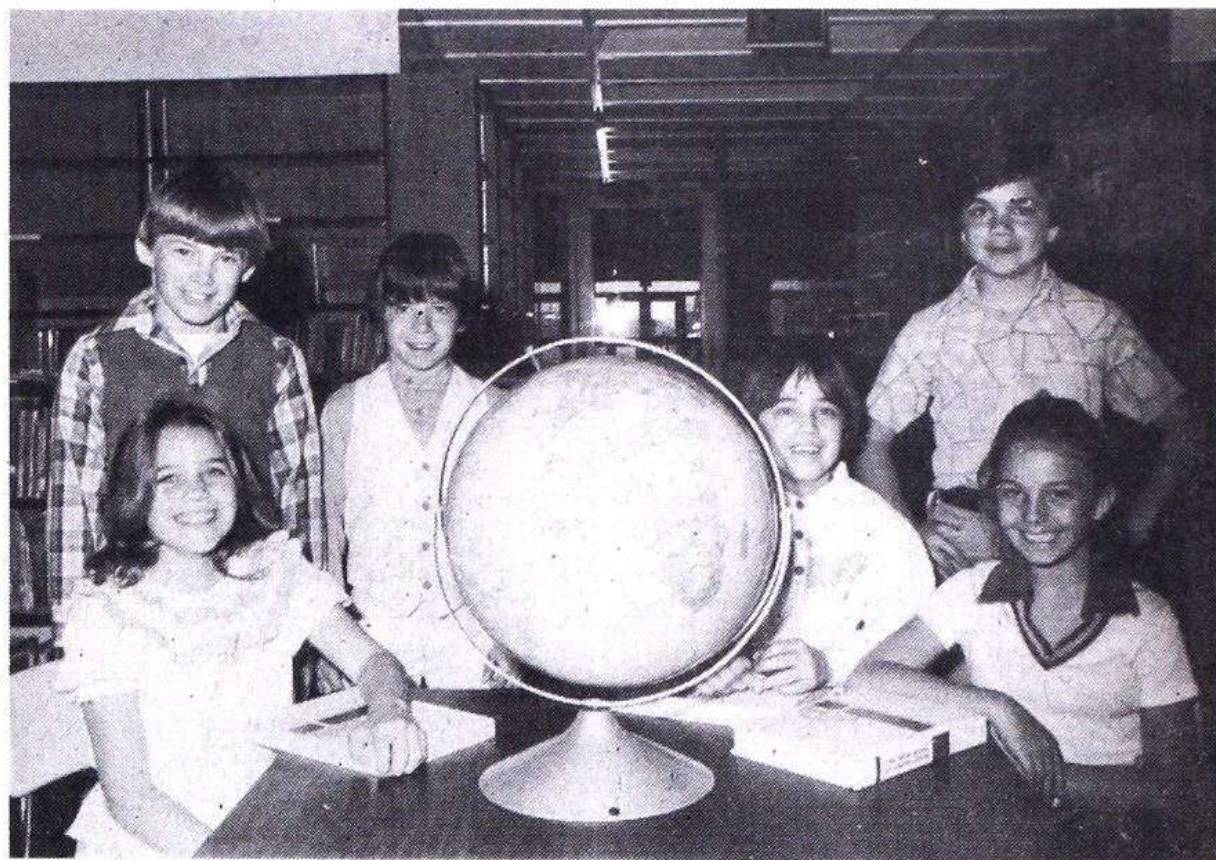

Lori Wright is class secretary and was active in varsity volleyball and softball. She is a member of the National Honor Society and was on the homecoming court. Lori's plans are to major in special education and go into the teaching field.

Ingrid Larson, member of Student and Class Council, is active in VICA

(Vocational Industrial Clubs of America). She competed in the health occupations area in district competitions. Ingrid earned third place in the Voice of Democracy Larson, member of Student and Class Council, is active in VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America). She competed in the health occupations area in district competitions. Ingrid earned third place in the Voice of Democracy Scholarship contest which was sponsored by V.F.W. this past November. She was required to write a short minute speech on "Why Do I Care About America."

Ingrid's future plans are to pursue a major in computer science and get a degree in engineering. Because of her strong interest in biology, Ingrid will be taking a second major in that field. She is presently employed at Setts Dry Cleaners, but will be attending Eastern starting this summer.

Jim Sullivan is a representative of Student Council and is president of Class Council. His interests are football and baseball in which he was co-captain on the football junior varsity team. Jim's major at Eastern will be in business and he plans a minor in public administration.

Pupils study for 'College Bowl'

Halecreek Elementary School "scholars" are studying their encyclopedias and globes for the first annual "College Bowl", Friday, May 4, 1979 at 1:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. The student scholars have studied for the past two months in the areas of science, mathematics and the humanities. They will be questioned by Arthur McPharlin, principal of Halecreek school, and judged by

Changing to an I.T.T. communications system would save the Romulus city government more than a quarter of a millions dollars over the next 15 years and beat its nearest competition, Michigan Bell, by nearly $100,000.

Those are the results of a review made by Clerk Leonard J. Folmar and presented to city council last month. Council is scheduled to review the matter at its budget session on May 10, the clerk said.

Folmar, in his report, explained that the I.T.T. proposal is designed so that the city would own the communications systems (mainly telephones and related equipment) when the contract period is over. Under the Michigan Bell proposal, the company actually leases the system and retains ownership of all equipment.

But, Folmar added, under the I.T.T. plan, the city would be responsible for "providing suitable raceways, conduits, power outlets, ducts, and equipment room space. With the Michigan Bell plan, the company would be responsible for everything.

The problem facing council is whether the substantially lower cost of the I.T.T. proposal would still end up cheaper than Michigan Bell at the end of a specified contract period, Folmar said.

Michigan Bell is currently being used by the city, but utilizing older equipment and a different type of switching concept.

Folmar said his review showed that for a 10-year period, the current Michigan Bell system would cost $297,098.40, Michigan Bell (new), $223,193.50, and I.T.T., $153,191. Using I.T.T. would save the city $143,907 over its current Michigan Bell system and $70,002 over the new Michigan Bell system, Folmar said.

The clerk said that all three systems were computed for costs for an additional five-year period past the 10 years being considered, with about the same results.

For five more years, the current Michigan Bell system would run $158,947, the new Michigan Bell, $89,126, and I.T.T., $66,740.

Over a 15-year period, using I.T.T. would save the city $236,114 over the current communications system, and $92,388 over the new Michigan Bell system.

But, Folmar cautioned, careful study must be made to determine whether Michigan Bell or I.T.T. would be cheaper in the long run in view of the city having to take care of other expenses with I.T.T.

In his report to council, Folmar also enclosed several letters from Michigan municipalities and companies attesting to the success they have experienced with I.T.T. since switching to that communications system.

Volunteers use CBs, own equipment to assist police

There is a unique group of men and women who make up the Wayne County Sheriff's Department Starship Command Search & Rescue Team.

Area residents saw this group in action recently when the Starship Command was called out to search the rain-swollen Rouge River for the body of 13-year-old Jeff Hatmaker.

Hatmaker of Westland drowned when his raft capsized in the flooded Rouge recently.

But the well-publicized story of the Hatmaker tragedy did not tell it all — like how the Starship Command personnel organized fund-raising coffee breaks and held raffles so that there would be money to bury the youth.

The story didn't tell who these devoted men and women are that risk their lives to help those in distress.

"The members of the WCSD Starship Command Search & Rescue team," points out member Ada Delisle, "not only used its training to aid in the search, but they used their hearts and souls to help the family through a heartbreaking financial burden."

What is the Starship Command?

It's a highly organized group of citizens with CB radios and specially equipped vehicles that was activated in November of 1978 under the jurisdiction of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. The group leaders are Officer Larry Waetjen of the WCSF, and citizens Craig Woods, Ed Grace, Ms. DeLisle and Bob Issacs who saw the need to assist the WCSD and other police agencies when search and rescue was called for.

One such occasion was on Wednesday, April 18 when the team was activated in the search for the Hatmaker youth who was presumed drowned on April 14, in the Venoy-Dorsey Park area.

The body was found on April 19 at approximately 3 p.m. by Wayne Police employee, Dale Black, and Rick Kirk, a member of the Starship Command Search & Rescue Team.

During the time of the search, Sharon Waetjen, a member of Starship Command, spoke to the various members of the Hatmaker family and learned that they were financially despondent. There would be no insurance money to cover funeral expenses.

Sharon suggested that the Starship Command hold a Memorial Coffee Break to raise money to help defray funeral costs and Nancy McMichael, also of the WCSD team, set the date for April 19 at the Little Caesar's Pizza. Hundreds participated and scores took part in a 50-50 raffle. At the end of the day, $1,200 was raised to help the family.

WJBK (Channel 2) and reporter Robbie Timmons helped publicize the incident and interviewed Larry Waetjen, Craig Woods and other members of the command.

"The Starship Command wishes they could personally thank all the generous people who donated but they are too numerous to contact, so we would like to publicly thank them," said Larry Waetjen. "We would also like to thank the people who donated money to the Starship Command for badly needed equipment."

Donations to the Hatmaker family are still being accepted and may be mailed to Wayne County Sheriff's Department Starship Command, Search & Rescue Team, C.O. officer Larry Waetjen, 3100 Henry Ruff, Westland, Michigan 48185.

Among those who have already donated are: Gas Buggy CB Club; Parkland CB Club; Kenneth J. Shelly; Ford Motor Company Body Engineering Employees; Little Caesar's; Starship Command Search & Rescue Team; Channel 12 CB's; I.T. Interlock Terminal Company & Employees; William Shuell Family and many others.

In turn, District 978 sends six young Australian men to District 640 in the United States, which includes the Belleville chapter.

The Australian team consists of: Alec Sydney Hand, team leader, who is employed by the Ford Motor Co. of Australia as a personnel executive; Wayne David Dodd, who farms 2,964 acres; John Leslie Esnouf, who is employed by the Country Roads Board as a supervising engineer;

Robert Francis Chaffe, who is employed by the Ministry for Conservation as a district conservation officer; Peter Michael Byrne, who is a solicitor and managing partner; and Bruce Robert Valpiet, who is a senior police constable.

Joining the Belleville Rotary Club for this special meeting will be members from Carleton, Flat Rock, New Boston, Romulus, Woodhaven, Canton Township, Garden City, Livonia, Wayne, Northville, Plymouth and Westland.

Speaker for the occasion will be Tom Washington, Lansing, executive director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. He will discuss the employment of 100,000 workers in Michigan for conserving, protecting and enhancing the state's natural resources.

Attending the dinner meeting at 6 p.m. will be District Gov. Jason P. Lovette of Romulus and District Gov.-Elect Frank Sladen.

The Rotary Foundation Group Study Exchange is an educational program designed to give outstanding young professional and businessmen an opportunity to study another country, its people and institutions by participating in an organized study and discussion program in the country concerned.

According to Bernard Boyd, past president of Belleville Rotary Club, the exchange program also furthers international understanding by leading men of different nations to meet, talk and live with each other in a spirit of fellowship.

Exchange participants also get to know each other's problems and aspirations, with the result that the personal contacts ripen into lasting friendships, he said.

Detroit Diesel clues students in on jobs

The world of work came alive for a number of high school students recently, courtesy of Detroit Diesel Allison Detroit Operations employees.

In Romulus, Darlene Stewart of the parts department spoke to several students at the Romulus Senior High School. Stewart and other members of the Romulus community were guests of the high school as part of its career day activities recently.

During 30-minute sessions, students got a bird's-eye-view of various job opportunities and the qualifications that employers look for when hiring.

Career day ceremonies have proven to be valuable for students. In some instances, the information students obtain is their first contact with employers. Stewart, who spoke to those interested in secretarial positions, stressed promptness, telephone courtesy, and typing skills.

But she went one step further. "Prepare for the unexpected," she said. "There'll be days when the phone is ringing off the hook, papers are stacked on your desk, and you'll begin to wonder how you're going to finish it all! That's when your boss might come in and give you an assignment you've never tackled before."

She continued, "Do it, though. Your ability to handle these situations increases your experience and helps to make you more promotable."

City gets grant

Garden City, Romulus and Taylor will receive a total of approximately $310,000 this year under the provisions of an urban grants bill approved last year by the Michigan Legislature, Senate Majority Leader William Faust (D-Westland) announced.

The majority leader said the State Treasury Department has just issued the first checks distributing $20,434.69 to Garden City; $13,100.86 to Romulus; and $43,933.11 to Taylor.

The communities will receive additional urban grants funds when checks are issued in June and September.

In annual competition

SFSL picks 'The Game' as top essay

A student at Plymouth Salem High School in Canton Township has walked away with the top award in the annual Standard Federal Savings and Loan Association Scholarship Award Program.

Kira Karinen's essay, entitled "The Game," was selected as the first-place winner in the annual essay contest for high school seniors. It was based on a theme of "The Role of Education in Our Lives."

Second-place honors went to Janine Shelly of John Glenn High School, Westland, while third was Leigh Sweda of Garden City West High School.

Miss Karinen received a $1,000 scholarship for placing first, while $500 and $250 awards went to the second- and third-place finishers respectively.

Also recognized were Karen Klapp of Huron High School, New Boston; Pamela Dudley of Willow Run High School, Ypsilanti; Deborah Filer of Belleville High School, Belleville; Michael Jewell of Robichaud High School, Dearborn Heights; Laura Linden of Cherry Hill High School, Inkster; Steven Mitchell of Garden City East High School, Garden City; Pamela Newton of Romulus Senior High School, Romulus; Janine Palmer of Crestwood High School, Dearborn Heights; Lenny Price of Inkster High School, Inkster; Mark Ringes of Plymouth Canton High School, Canton Township; and Suzanne Palmer of Ypsilanti High School, Ypsilanti.

The students were recognized for their writing skills at a banquet, held April 5 at the Dearborn Holiday Inn.

The following is Miss Karinen's winning essay, "The Game."

By KIRAKARINEN

As I sat reading a juicy novel, the kind that oozes smut out the edges, I suddenly came back to reality. Someone was talking to me. Slightly annoyed, my eyes moved beyond the book smack into the big baby blues of my 8-year-old brother, Kyle.

"Kira," he said, "Do you like school? Do you think it's good?" My response was to wave my hand and mumble yes. Not sure whether he was satisfied or not, Kyle was pushed onward by my smugly smiling education-pushing mother. A moment or two later the realization of what I had said sunk in and wildly I turned looking in the air to find my words to snatch them back. My sister and a friend sat silently accusing me from across the room.

In unison, they asked, "Do you really think that?"

Defensively, I sputtered, "Yes — no, I don't know." (The classic schoolroom cop out) thus I was caught in a trap that society neatly sets. Was I to tell my brother the truth and totally disillusion his 8-year-old mind, or was I to help brainwash him? In all fairness to him, I'm glad I unwittingly lied because he has to sit through 11 more years of school.

education in today's society are bitter. This outlook stems from 13 years of school, today's equivalent of education. Here I am, on the brink of college, which is supposed to be "the golden opportunity to learn," with just one sour note. The discord is that I have no desire left to learn. The innate curiosity that abounds in kindergarten has been stifled, trampled, and paperworked to death in 13 years. School also rejects creativity, independence and humanity in the process of turning out hundreds of gray-brown average students who look, think, talk and act alike (quantity not quality).

There are many methods and procedures that school uses to produce 600 students a year. A few classic examples are work that is designed not to help the student learn, but to keep them busy for an hour; classes geared to the below-average moron; high school teachers who don't teach, but read the textbook aloud; movies (made at least 20 years ago) shown every day; explanations given by teachers who can't even speak proper English; and other assorted rigamarole, to be filed in triplicate, of course.

By the end of several years of school, at the tender age of 8 or 9, one becomes addicted to repetitious worksheets, copying sentences from the blackboard over and over, (can't be original — against the rules), and reading about the sterile boring life of Dick, Jane and their gray-brown dog. School bores children so much that they begin fervently hoping for THAT time, when the thrill of the day, recess, begins.

After school bores a child stiff,

Things that matter

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

FROM MRS. B.W.L.: I read what you wrote in disapproval of the TV program, "Scared Straight," about degradation in the prisons. To my knowledge, no one forced you or anyone else to turn on your TV and watch the program.

REPLY: I think you have been taken in by "the myth of the on-off switch." This myth says that if you don't like something on TV, all you have to do is turn off your TV set. In this way, the people who want to see the program can see it and those who don't want to see it won't have to.

On the surface, it would appear that not even Solomon could have come up with a wiser solution, but don't be fooled.

This might be a workable arrangement, if you are talking about whether or not to watch something innocuous like "Laverne and Shirley."

We are, however, over into a different area when we start talking about the jiggler shows, "The Dating Game" or programs like "Scared Straight."

It is then that believing "the myth of the on-off switch" makes about as much sense as saying, "If you believe in the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit, obey it. But don't try to keep your fellow drivers from going 75 or 80, if they want to."

The point is, how fast the other drivers go affects YOUR life and safety. So you ought to have something to say about it.

So it is with the moral climate of our society. What others do affects us.

The quality of the cultural air we are forced to breathe is determined by what the majority accepts or allows morally — not by our personal preferences. Indeed, what we personally accept or allow can be subtly influenced by this cultural consensus.

So if there is something we don't want our children to see on TV, it is not enough to say we won't let them watch. We also don't want their peers to watch.

This does not mean we are acting as "our brother's keeper." It means we realize the effect of "peer pressure" on the lives of our children whose moral training is one of the closest things to our heart — and properly so.

FROM J.R.S.: You say you are left with the feeling that we could have done without "Scared Straight" on national TV. It SHOULD be on national TV. And the often the better. Prison conditions will not improve until many persons make it improve.

REPLY: It is true that prison conditions will not improve until society does something about it. But I think you are naive to think programs like "Scared Straight" will start a move toward prison reform.

The news media are filled with the ghastly goings-on in our society which fill us with disgust. Do you see society improving as a result?

Be not deceived. "Scared Straight" has an eye for the ratings — not for reform.

FOM MRS. A.A.E.: We parents should be grateful that a program such as "Scared Straight" was shown to our youngsters. At first I was reluctant to have my 10-year-old son hear such terrible language. But he told me, "Mom, it's no worse than the language we hear the kids in school use every day."

REPLY: We will never improve the quality of everyday speech and manners by taking the position that "we've all heard these words before so what's the harm?" This is how to assure we will continue to be a society of slobs.

Are we so hung up on the "Realism" kick that we have discarded St. Paul's word to the people of Philippi: "Finally, brethren, whatever things are true, honest, just pure, lovely and of good report, think on these things."

FROM D.V.: I read your open letter to Rev. Hubbard in which you tried to rehabilitate Bob Harrington. Hearing Mrs. Harrington's version of their marriage which ended in divorce would no doubt give you a more balanced perspective.

The press reports I read indicated that Harrington was extra-maritally involved before his wife even started divorce proceedings and that his own children and their spouses on his staff resigned in disgust because of their father's behavior.

REPLY: I perhaps should have asked Harrington whether the "awful things" his ex-wife said about him were true.

Personally, I feel that whether they were true or not, she was wrong in spreading those stories. Then there is the question of forgiveness. Are we to make Harrington suffer all his life for his infidelity to his wife — if that is what it was?

ARE YOU AWARE

Of the Inheritance for God's Children

How do we know we are God's Children?

ROMANS 8:16—The spirit himself testifies with our spirit that we are God's children. V. 17—Now if we are children, then we are heirs—heirs of God and co-heirs with Christ. If indeed we share in his sufferings in order that we may also share in his glory. GALATIANS 4:7—So you are no longer a slave, but a son; and since you are a son, God has made you also a heir.

How can we assure ourselves of this inheritance?

ROMANS 3:14—Because those who are led by the spirit of God are sons of God.

How can we be sure we will lose this inheritance?

I PETER 1:22—Now that you have purified yourselves by obeying the truth so that you have sincere love for your brothers, love one another deeply from the heart.

I JOHN 4:8—Whoever does not love does not know God, because God is love.

I JOHN 2:15—Do not love the world or anything in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the father is not in him.

I JOHN 2:17—The world and its desires pass away, but the man who does the will of God lives forever.

God's true children will keep his word.

I JOHN 2:5—But if anyone obeys his word, God's love is truly made complete in him. This is how we know we are in him.

Dear friends, The word of God is truly the most important thing for anyone's life. Please don't neglect to study the word.

Now we invite you to come join with us in worship and study, also we wish to invite you to meet and hear our new pastor, a deeply dedicated minister of the Good News, a man that can stir you and inspire you from God's word. Rev. Paul Leslie comes to us from Portsmouth, Ohio. Come join us.

Neighborhood establishes its own Watch Program

Neighborhood citizen patrols, and a neighborhood watch of homes, conducted in cooperation with the Westland Police, will apparently begin soon in the Westland neighborhood bounded by Glenwood, Palmer, Wayne Road and Second Street.

Upwards of 100 residents of that area met Sunday at an outdoor front lawn meeting on Christine Street, to talk about problems of vandalism, theft and burglaries in their neighborhood.

Attendance by Westland Police

Chief William Rechlin, YES director Gene Hudson, and council members Robert Wagner, Justine Barns, Nancy Neal, Richard Stempin and Charles Griffin, gave residents a chance to tell the people charged with maintaining health, safety and welfare of citizens about the problems.

Organizers of the neighborhood meeting were Chuck and Mary Richards and Dennis and Pat Campbell, who live across from each other on Christine.

They and other residents complained of breaking and enterings, and vandalism that they feel has increased in past months, the work, they believe of a group of about eight neighborhood youths between 14 and 17 years of age. One youngster was caught in the act of vandalizing a camper by Richards himself and is being prosecuted. But aside from this, other complaints have produced no evidence firm enough to arrest anyone.

When neighbors began complaining about lack of police patrol cars in the area, the Police Department did respond with more visibility, Richards said.

And Rechlin, after the meeting, said he has made it high priority that cars regularly patrol the neighborhood and has directed officers to do so. Rechlin also said he would be willing to cooperate with the neighbors in their efforts to come up with their own neighborhood watch, a tool that would be even more effective, he said, than patrol cars.

"Local citizens can do a lot to solve the problems by becoming involved, by watching their neighbors' houses, by being the eyes and ears for the police," he said. There already are some CB people who act as eyes and ears in some Westland neighborhoods.

But Rechlin strongly opposes any effort by citizens to carry that patrolling action any further, and said he would "absolutely not" sanction any citizens carrying guns or such.

Rechlin was complimentary to Richards for the way the meeting was run, and for the willingness of the citizens to channel their anger and frustration and do positive things. And he thinks that the neighborhood youths who are accused of causing the problems may realize that there are a lot better chances of getting caught now, a fact that may be a deterrent.

Richards said he passed around a volunteer sheet and had 48 people sign up to participate in working with the police on neighborhood watching. He added that he's not in favor of mob rule, or vigilantes, and any patrol would work under the auspices of the police department.

Ironically, Richards and his wife are "house parents" to a group home for four boys, ages 14 to 17. They moved in last October, as a foster home under the direction of Pyramid Human Services.

He emphasizes that the problems are not caused by his boys, and he was worried that neighbors might think they were. He is a therapeutic child care worker. He emphasized, however, that the meeting was not his idea for effort alone, that, with the Campbells, the idea was a real grassroots movement.

Juvenile problems were not the only topic of conversation, or the only source of frustration and anger among neighbors at the meeting.

They complained of an extensive dust problem (the roads are unpaved), of need for stop signs in certain areas, or need for street lights and road maintenance. Council members in attendance responded and gave the citizens suggestions in getting the problems solved.

Richards said the meeting was a successful beginning, but the effort will not stop now. "Floating committees" will work on the various problems, and another neighborhood meeting is planned in two weeks.

He complimented the council members and police chief for attending and fielding what at times were harsh questions, saying they "made the effort to submit themselves to public questioning in a forum over which they didn't have control."

Callahan performs at State Theater

O'Lyn Callahan, a young West Coast organist who has received critical acclaim for her performances, will be in concert May 6 at the State Wayne Theater.

Miss Callahan will be performing at 3 p.m. Her visit is being sponsored by Pat Feight, owner of Yamaha Keyboard World.

In announcing the concert, Mrs. Feight said: "It is our practice to provide free concerts for the people of our area in order to not only provide an afternoon of fine music, but also to share our personal love for music."

When you combine beauty and talent plus education, and your performance brings raves from critics, it can be said, "You have everything going for you."

Miss Callahan, born and raised in southern California, is that kind of an artist. The beautiful young lady plays with the light jazz style popularized by the Carpenters, but with the depth and sound heard in a Count Basie big band recording. Her musicianship and educational background allows her to feel comfortable performing a wide range of styles certain to please any age group.

Miss Callahan began her music studies at the age of 9 on piano, switching to the organ when she was 16. She continued her studies going on to graduate from California State College in Fresno with a bachelor's degree in music, plus a master's in classical organ performance.

The State Wayne Theater is located at 35310 Michigan Avenue, Wayne.

Warblers to be topic of survey

"Warbler Migration" will be the subject of a family nature walk to be held at the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock on May 13 at 10 a.m.

Bird enthusiasts on all levels of expertise should plan to join naturalists Glenn Dent and Fred Wooley in search of the tiny, but colorful wood warblers. Migration should be at its peak at this time so many species can be identified.

The program is free, however, vehicle entry permits are required.

For additional information contact the nature center of Oakwoods Metropark at 782-1255 (Flat Rock).

Audubon Society stages bird-a-thon

Michigan Audubon Society is hosting a bird-a-thon to raise operating funds for the Whitefish Point Bird Observatory. Whitefish Point is a peninsula jutting out into Lake Superior in the eastern Upper Peninsula where many species of migrating birds concentrate, offering a unique opportunity for research and observation.

A bird-a-thon is like a walk-a-thon, but instead of getting pledges for each mile walked, participants in a bird-a-thon collect pledges for each bird identified on a particular day.

Although May 19 is the primary date for the bird-a-thon, participants may choose an alternate date. In fact, in the southern part of Michigan, suggests Michigan Audubon Society, the weekend of May 12 may yield more species of birds.

Participants should keep a record of the species identified and their general location.

"Most participants will record 50 to 100 species of birds if they spend several hours in the field," noted Richard L. Myers, Michigan Audubon Society's new president.

The count should be made in or near the participant's area of residence. Michigan Audubon Society suggests that birders pick an area such as a state game area, park, wildlife refuge, or even visit several areas in their county.

After the count, participants should present their species list to those from whom they received pledges and collect the pledges. Checks should be made payable to Michigan Audubon Society bird-a-thon. Species lists and pledges should be sent in care of Whitefish Point

Bird Observatory Bird-a-thon to Michigan Audubon Society, 7000 N. Westnedge Avenue, Kalamazoo 49007. Pledge sheets also are available from the Michigan Audubon office.

Hospital offers 3 seminars

Wayne County General Hospital will host three free evening seminars for the public next week during National Hospital Week.

On Tuesday "Aging and Its Effects" will be presented by the hospital's rehabilitation coordinator. Included in the seminar will be sensory losses, attitudes, physical fitness and exercise therapy.

On Wednesday the topic will be alcoholism. The presentation will consist of a comprehensive film, entitled "I'll Quit Tomorrow," covering all aspects of the problems of alcoholism. A discussion by the representatives of the Alcohol Treatment Center will follow.

On May 10 a seminar on rape will be conducted by a representative from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

The seminars are open to the public and will be at 7 p.m. in the conference hall, ground floor of Wayne County General Hospital. The hospital is located on Merriman Road just north of Michigan Avenue in Westland.

Further information can be obtained by calling Fern Vining, or Elaine Saneske, at 274-3000, ext. 6214.

Scratch cooking center makes debut

Savings resulting from the newly opened "scratch-cooking" facility at the J Building senior citizen center in Westland is expected to provide hot meals for 25 percent more seniors in the coming months, according to Dante DiVitto, director of the Wayne County Office on Aging.

The facility, which opened April 19, prepares meals for 450 seniors at seven different sites located in Sumpter, Canton, Plymouth, Van Buren, Inkster, Westland and Huron Township.

"Catered meals," he said, "have

Chef's pleasure

opening at the center. The facility will provide meals for seven out-county nutrition sites and will cut the preparation costs per meal from $1.31 to 95 cents.

been costing the county approximately $1.31 each. We've been able to cut this to 95 cents by doing the preparation ourselves."

Caroline Lewis, director of nutrition, added: "Another important factor is our ability to provide a wider variety of foods and even some ethnic diets. We plan to gradually expand the service to all of the 48 sites which serve 2,955 seniors each day."

Wayne County's nutrition program is the second largest in Michigan, second only to Detroit.

Chief chef for the facility is Yonus Howard, a 15-year veteran of some of Detroit's most popular restaurants. His Thursday "grand opening" display was praised by gourmets such as State Rep. Thomas Brown (D-Westland) and Wayne County Commissioners Maxine Young and Delores Bennett (D-Detroit), Martha Scott (D-Highland Park) and Alex Pilch (D-Dearborn).

Pilch pointed out: "The opening of this new facility was a fine example of Wayne County's efforts to utilize available funds in such a way as to feed more seniors. The tastiness and greater variety enhances the appeal of the program — one of the most compassionate we have for senior citizens."

Renovations, which were partially funded by federal money received last year, included bringing the existing equipment up to code, purchasing new equipment and adding more staff.

"It has been a long project, Lewis said, "but we are really in ship-shape order now and very proud of it."

Volunteers are needed

Albert Schweitzer once said: "I don't know what your destiny will be, but one thing I know, the only ones among you who will really be happy are those who have sought out and found how to serve."

The American Red Cross Youth Service can provide interested youths with an opportunity to serve in places like convalescent centers, Head Start programs, health department clinics, Easter Seals day camp and hospitals in the metropolitan Detroit area.

Youths and their friends can form their own blood teams and serve on Red Cross bloodmobile units, or help recruit donors for special blood needs.

All that is needed to become a youth volunteer is enthusiasm and an interest in people. The training the Red Cross Provides, the talents a volunteer discovers and the experience they gain may give them and edge in today's tight job market.

Youths who are 14 years or older can visit Red Cross Office at 833-4440 for further information. or call the area America

You have been skiing all day. The weather has been good with the temperature in the low 20s and a hazy overcast. Your eyes begin to hurt and feel as though you have grains of sand under the eyelids.

WOULD YOU....

A. Recognize these symptoms as those of snowblindness and put on dark glasses or improvised goggles to reduce the light affecting the eyes.

B. Immediately head for the lodge or camp to seek assistance.

C. Stop and make a camp so you can treat your eyes for the snowblindness.

D. Not worry because the symptoms described do not present a bona fide emergency.

Should not be considered morbid

Funerals: Just as important as buying a car

The funeral director leads the grief-stricken widow into the casket showroom where special lighting and coordinated use of color heighten the effect of the display that is arranged according to price with the most expensive models in prominent locations in the room.

After looking at several models, including one with an embroidered lining and mattress-type springs, the wife of the deceased decides to purchase a steel model in the moderately-priced range. Having completed the selection, the two walk by the remaining caskets and into a reception area to complete arrangements for the funeral.

Funerals and their costs traditionally have been considered morbid subjects for our polite society, details usually foisted upon us abruptly with the demise of a loved one. But, according to a consumer expert at the Michigan Consumer Education Center, located on the campus of Eastern Michigan University, funerals should be just as important to Michigan consumers as the purchase of a new automobile.

Margaret Quinn, a coordinator at the Michigan Consumer Education Center, recently wrote a consumer's compendium on funerals and she conducts in-service workshops on that topic for consumer education teachers throughout southeastern Michigan.

According to Quinn, no one should ever make arrangements for a funeral alone. Here's a list of consumer tips that the EMU expert suggests for planning a funeral:

— Always take someone else with you when planning a funeral, someone who can be objective and make decisions in your self-interest.

— Pre-plan funerals.

— If you have strong feelings about your funeral, make these feelings known to family members who eventually will handle the arrangements.

— Know all the alternatives that are available to you. If price is a consideration, survey costs for funeral services.

— Be aware of the legal requirements for funerals in your state.

— "Since most consumers lack experience in planning a funeral, they are caught in a typical arrangement," Quinn advised. "They are in a state of grief, guilt and dependence. I'd suggest that all consumers know what goods and services are required in Michigan and understand the alternatives available to them."

Quinn's booklet, originally designed as a teaching module, contains a list of materials and resources available to consumers on funerals and their costs, consumer expense sheets, an explanation of the funeral process, rights and responsibilities of the survivors, Michigan funeral industry laws, procedures in planning a funeral and a glossary of terms commonly used by funeral directors. In addition, the booklet contains facsimiles of death

MARSHALL ADAMS

National Bank of Detroit has announced the appointment of Marshall V. Adams of Royal Oak as Assistant Banking Officer in its Regional Banking Division. As Branch Manager of the Detroit Metropolitan Airport office, in Romulus Adams is responsible for all banking operations at the branch. In his 10 years with NBD, he has held a number of managerial positions in the bank's branch system. Adam holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in economics from Adrian College. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies and is a captain in the Ohio Air National Guard.

certificates, burial-transit permits, funeral price survey forms and a procedure for consumer complaints when goods and services do not meet acceptable standards.

One of the caveats listed as influencing consumer decisions on funerals is "time pressure" to make decisions quickly.

Quinn wrote: "if the death was in the hospital, the removal of the body may be hurried because of limited facilities to hold the body. Within a few hours following an unexpected death, a family member must make significant decisions, often without basic information concerning prices, legal requirements and alternatives."

While consumers often lack knowledge and experience in dealing with funerals, Quinn states "funeral directors are calm and familiar with the detail in dealing with the dead."

Included in the section of the booklet dealing with the funeral industry is a list of Federal Trade Commission (FTC) citations compiled during a 1978 investigation. Quinn believes consumers should be aware of the FTC's remarks. The list of criticisms included:

— Embalming the body without the permission of a family member.

— Claiming directly or by implication that a casket is required for cremation.

— Failing to make an alternative container available in lieu of a casket for cremation.

— Failing to display the least expensive casket in the same manner that others are displayed.

— Failing to provide price information upon request.

— Encouraging the purchase of additional or more expensive merchandise or services.

— Making false or misleading claims regarding the preservative value of embalming, a casket or an outer burial container.

Quinn says consumers have a right to ask for and receive a list of itemized costs for funeral expenses, not only during a funeral transaction but also when a cost comparison is being made prior to a death. But, she says, few funeral directors are willing to give the consumer a complete cost breakdown for services.

"One way to cut the cost of a traditional funeral is to join a 'memorial society' which sometimes gets special discount rates from funeral directors. The only catch to joining one is Michigan does not allow memorial societies to get special discounts as they do in other states," the EMU consumer advocate said.

More Americans are investigating cremation as an alternative of traditional funeral arrangements, Quinn says, but cremating the deceased will not necessarily incur a drop in the expense of a funeral.

"Cremation only costs less if you don't go in for the traditional arrangements. Some funeral directors will still try to persuade you to purchase an expensive casket even though it will be destroyed in the process," Quinn said.

Cremation reduces the remains to an average of five to seven pounds of ashes in approximately 30 minutes. Bodies must be placed "in a suitable container" and plastic and fiberglass coffins usually are discouraged by crematories because of the excessive smoke they produce.

Another alternative to traditional arrangements and cremation is the bequest program established by most medical schools for training and research in medical fields. Quinn says that the "Uniform Anatomical Gift Act" facilitates the donation and use of human bodies or individual parts for medical purposes. Under terms of the act, "a deceased person's wishes must be carried out, if body donation has been specified on the donor card which is carried on the person at all times."

Also, Quinn says that consumers should be aware of several Michigan laws that are written in a manner which allow funeral homes to circumvent them. Some of the examples listed in the booklet illustrate her point:

— Although Michigan law may not require a casket for cremation, some crematories may require one. Others will accept any reasonable container including a body bag or a cardboard box.

— Michigan law does not require a sealed outside vault for burial — but some cemeteries do have such a requirement.

— Michigan law does not require embalming, if the body is buried or cremated within 48 hours and if death was not caused by contagious diseases — but some funeral directors still insist on embalming.

Quinn's teaching booklet includes a list of final instructions for consumers to use in pre-planning a funeral and a funeral price survey form for cost comparisons in analyzing goods and services offered by funeral homes. Both worksheets are available at the Michigan Consumer Education Center at EMU.

"If you know what your legal rights are, you stand a better chance of getting what you want in preparing your funeral," Quinn said. "Know what alternatives are available to you."

The consumer booklet contains practical information for the general public. The module costs $1.50 and is available by contacting the Michigan Consumer Education Center at Eastern and requesting an order form. Call the center at 487-2292 for more information.

SFSL picks 'The Game' as top essay in contest

then, suddenly an exciting element is introduced — the Game. The object of the Game is not to learn, but to get the highest grades. Necessary equipment includes the teacher, the students, grades and the parental push for the honor of the A (what would Hester Prynne think). The Game is conducted in the pressure-cooker atmosphere of school. (If missing any parts, write Society's Plastic Games Inc., P.O. Box Hypocrisy).

Of course, you aren't told that The Game exists; in fact, people might get very upset if you tell them about The Game. Only the rules aren't secret, because (surprise, surprise) there are no rules — ANYTHING GOES! Some hints to get ahead of your competitors are brown-nose the teacher; bedazzle the teacher with your pedantry; don't learn anything you want to, but learn what they want you to; listen to the lectures and spoon-feed it back to the teachers on tests. Besides all these lovely lessons The Game also teaches students to cheat.

Yes, after 13 years of The Game and listening to the hollow echoes of school, it is no wonder that students don't want to learn. The only solution to this modern dilemma is to reevaluate the present factory system that yields gray-brown graduates.

The first thing to eliminate is The Game, whose ultimate goal is not learning, but receiving grades. To kill this Hydra you must cut off its food supply — grades and institute a credit-no credit system. This will only work when the emphasis of education becomes creative thinking rather than grades.

Education should also stress the importance of individuality. By having self-paced study in the classroom, students would gain independence, self-reliance, and develop their potential to a fuller extent. Students ought to be able to initiate their own projects using their natural curiosity and creativity. By stressing the individual, instead of producing gray-browns, school could be a meaningful learning experience for a rainbow of people.

Entry-level jobs to be plentiful this summer

Entry-level jobs are expected to be more plentiful in the Michigan labor market this summer.

But State Labor Director Pat Babcock cautions that competition for these jobs will be stiff.

"The wrong time to start looking for a job is the day school gets out," he said. "Nearly 700,000 youths, ages 14 through 17, will be looking for jobs. The ones with the best chance of landing a job are those who know how to go about it and are there first."

Babcock suggests the place to start lining up a job is talking with friends, relatives and neighbors.

"It is proven that most jobs are found through friends," Babcock said. "Let them know you are in the market for a job, and the kind of work you can do."

Assess your skills. Can you type? Are you a good carpenter? Do you like to cook? Even hobbies sometimes convert to jobs. It also is important to consider what you learned in school. Home economics or auto mechanics can help line up a job. Ask your school counselor for advice.

Make a list of things you need to know for an application or interview. Get a sample application and use it for practice. If you don't have a Social Security number, get one.

Consider your past work record, and don't overlook volunteer work, such as candy stripping in a hospital or working with a teen club.

Get the names and addresses of previous employers. If you have a high school diploma, have it available. Put together your references. These can be teachers, adult friends, counselors, Scout leaders, clergy, but not relatives.

It is important to let these people know you are using them as a reference.

Put together a brief description of your accomplishments, awards, honors, positions held, athletic participation. A counselor, teacher, or relative can help with this. But remember, your resume is a sales tool, not a life history.

Spend 15 cents for a folder to carry your resume to a job interview. Have your resume typed and have copies available.

WHERE TO LOOK: If you already have asked friends and relatives, keep your eyes open. Some employers still use their front window to advertise for help.

Read the classified section in newspapers and local shopping guides. Watch bulletin boards at supermarkets.

Check the places that gear up for summer employment, such as resorts, camps, playgrounds, amusement parks, farms, nurseries, ice cream and soft drink concessions.

Contact motels, hotels, theaters, drive-in movies, golf courses, any business that was closed for the winter. Make telephone calls. Don't be shy. Ask for an interview.

THE INTERVIEW: Let's say you've set up an interview. What's next.

Find out about the company before you interview. Often you don't need to know much, but if you want to be a groundskeeper on a golf course, go to the library and glance through a book on golfing. At least learn that there are 18 holes.

Be on time for an interview and dress conservatively. Don't wear sunglasses. Disco apparel probably is not appropriate unless, of course, you're applying at a dance studio.

Don't bring a friend with you to an interview and don't tell a friend you've had an interview. Save it until you've got the job otherwise your friend may end up with your job.

If you have an opportunity, tell the interviewer what you can do. Be brief, and ask questions. Don't exaggerate your skills.

If, after the interview, you are told they will let you know in a week or so, send them a letter thanking them for the interview and that you look forward to meeting the interviewer again.

If you don't get the job — don't worry. Not many persons get the first job they interview for.

After the interview, think about it. What could you have said better. Babcock said persistence pays off.

"By the time you find a job you should have filled out enough applications that you know your Social Security number as well as you know your own name," he said.

While looking for a job, don't forget to contact the local Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC) office. Ask for job service.

MESC publishes free booklets, "MESC's Beginners Guide to Work," and "How to Find a Job," which gives youths an idea of what employers expect of new workers. Specifics like attendance, on-the-job behavior, employer's obligations and payments to employees are covered.

Diabetes bike-athon slated for May 12

Bikers throughout the state are getting their bikes ready for some fun riding in the American Diabetes Association-Michigan Affiliate's annual bike ride.

Six routes have been planned for May 12, 19 and June in the Detroit metropolitan area, with the local ride slated for May 12 along the Edward Hines Parkway in Western Wayne County.

The routes have been planned with the biker's safety as the primary concern, so all six routes will be closed to motor vehicles for the duration of the bike ride. The ride is open to anyone of any age capable of pedaling wheels, including tricycles.

Jack In The Box Restaurants will be distributing free food and drink coupons to each participant. A Fuji 10-speed bike will be awarded as grand prize to the biker who turns in the most money from each route.

Interested riders must obtain a sponsor form available at Jack In The Box Restaurants, local bike shops, or by calling the association, and acquire their sponsors prior to the day of the bike ride. Sponsors pledge a given amount of money for every mile ridden by the biker.

Diabetes affects millions of Americans and the Michigan Affiliate of the American Diabetes Association has programs to help such as research, a camp for diabetic children, educational programs, and free diabetes testing. All these programs need funds, and by joining the bike ride, riders and sponsors will be contributing their support.

Volunteers also are needed to help at checkpoints the day of the ride. For further information contact the American Diabetes Association, 6131 W. Outer Drive, Detroit, 48235, or call 342-9333.

Handy crafters hold flea market

NEWS OF SAFETY

Tips For Push Mowers

If you've ever used a non-power mower, you can better appreciate the virtues of one that practically does your mowing for you. Here are some tips from the experts at the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute for pushing your mower in the direction of safety.

1. Know what you're doing. Even an old hand can use a refresher course from his owner's manual when mowing season starts.

2. Dress for the occasion. Big bell bottoms are out—so are sandals. Snug-fitting pants and heavy duty shoes are best.

3. Make sure no one is in your path or in the mowing area—keep alert, especially when backing up.

4. Never cut grass when it's wet. It may clog up blades and discharge chute—cause you to slip.

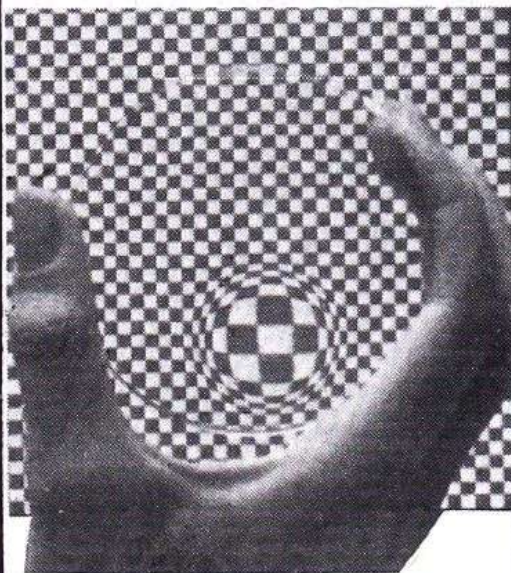

5. With a walk-behind mower cut in one direction—across slopes, never up and down.

6. Mowers aren't meant to be pulled, tilted or lifted when they're running—they could overturn.

7. Stop the engine before clearing the discharge chute or removing the grass catcher bag.

These tips and a bit of common sense will give you a lawn (and a safety record) to be proud of.

Up in the sky

Planets dominate May's nighttime celestial show

For amateur sky watchers, the month of May begins with views of two planets high in the evening sky after dark and three planets low in the morning sky just before sunrise.

That's the word from University of Michigan astronomer Richard G. Teske.

Jupiter will appear like "a bright beacon high in the western sky" and Saturn, the giant ringed planet in the constellation Leo, will be nearly overhead, and both planets will continue to be fine evening objects for viewing all month, Teske said.

"About a half-hour before the sun rises during the first week of May, "Mercury, Venus and Mars can be seen glowing above the eastern horizon to the right of the coming sun," he added. "Mercury, the innermost planet, will quickly move behind the sun and by mid-month will be seen no more.

"On the morning of May 23, Venus, Mars and the waning crescent of the 27-day-old moon will form a group in the east before sunrise."

Another astronomical sight visible to the unaided eye in early May is the Eta Awarid meteor shower. These meteors are named for "the star in the water-jar of Aquarius from which they seem to radiate," Prof. Teske noted. They will be best seen in the second half of the nights of May 5 and 6.

The U-M astronomer also pointed out the Milky Way, "a band of light across the night sky made up of the combined brightnesses of billions of faint and distant stars that are members of our own galaxy."

"When the Milky Way is high in the sky on early May mornings," he said, "we can easily see a great path of obscuring dust dividing the Milky Way into two parts stretching from the constellation Cygnus southwards into Aquila and beyond."

Between the stars lie great clouds of gas and dust. The gas, composed mainly of hydrogen and helium, makes up as much as 10 percent of the total amount of material in our galaxy.

In some regions of space, the gas atoms are mixed with dust grains, which are "thought to be made of some complicated recipe of carbon, iron and ice." Much smaller than those on earth, the grains are perhaps twenty-millionths of an inch across, he said.

"Astronomers long ago discovered that the gas and dust clouds along the Milky Way are organized into a pattern which gives to some galaxies their distinctive spiral arms — and so they are sure that the Milky Way system is also a spiral galaxy," explains Professor Teske.

Spring nights through May are the season for telescopic observations of distant galaxies, the U-M astronomer points out.

"After dark on May evenings, the Milky Way lies nearly flat all around the horizon, the part of the sky almost unaffected by the dusty zone of obscuration," he said. This area now can be watched all night at observatories in the United States.

"In a region called the north galactic polar cap (nearly over our heads on spring evenings) lie distant, rich clusters of galaxies and many nearby bright galaxies," he added. "In this important hunting ground, astronomers are seeking answers to questions about the nature of galaxies and the nature of the universe itself."

Can you survive?

TO SURVIVE

Alternative (A) would be the best action to take. Hazy conditions can be the most deceptive and can cause distress to the unwary. By putting on dark glasses or some improvised goggles to reduce the glare from the snow, you will be able to negotiate your way back to your camp. Prevention is the key to avoiding snowblindness symptoms, and this can be accomplished by wearing dark glasses on all outings of this type.

(B) would be suitable once your eyes have received some protection as in (A) and you still can see. To depart for your camp or lodge without first taking definite protective measures could easily result in a worsening of the symptoms.

(C) would be warranted, if weather conditions are inclement, and your condition makes it impossible for you to see your way back to camp, and/or the distance back to camp is too long to travel in a short period of time.

(D) is not an acceptable response. Snowblindness is an emergency and has to be treated. Recognizing the symptoms in the early stages will aid in preventing catastrophic difficulties later. (A service of your local Air Force recruiter.)

A 'litter' message for V.B. Dumpsters

Last week's front page picture story of the accumulating trash along Morton Taylor road is indicative of the times we find ourselves living in.

While 'No Littering' signs are sprouting almost faster than the trash, for all the good they seem to do, they should themselves be added to the trash pile.

The 'empty threat' is no deterrent to either littering or crime. And while the books now provide adequate punishment for all sorts of misdeeds, the willingness of our judicial appears to be much weaker than the intent of the law.

It is ironic that those who litter at will and with apparent impunity, suffer less at the hands of the law than some who were elected to office to represent the people and then are tossed in jail for contempt of court.

While within the confines of the average courthouse, contempt of court is a crime. Outside the courthouse, contempt of the court is no longer an isolated incident, practiced only by malcontents. On the contrary, the longer our courts go without firming their judicial back-bones, the longer it will be before we will be able to once again affectively provide justice for all.

Romulus clean-up unites community

The upcoming city-wide clean-up campaign to be undertaken on May 12 in Romulus, again proves that this is a city with both heart and pride.

Utilizing many of the community's service organizations and local clubs, the clean-up will be an ambitious affair designed to again prove that the community is united in the drive to make the city a better place to live.

But even more important than the mountains of trash that will be collected by the many volunteers, this effort will re-awaken community spirit, asleep over the past winter months.

We have long voiced our support for such activities. They are not only necessary for a growing community, but actually spur such growth.

On that same order of thought, city officials have once again announced their support for the upcoming Michigan Week festivities scheduled to begin on May 19.

Over the past two years, Romulus has provided an excellent example of what that occasion was supposed to accomplish.

A re-newed focus on the contributions of Romulus' citizens and industry alike toward the well being of the state as a whole.

Highlights of the week-long celebration include displays, and exhibits of goods produced in Romulus, dances, picnics, all aimed at demonstrating the contribution of the people of Romulus to their community.

This type of event is not easy to organize and manage, but the people of Romulus have done it before and they will undoubtedly do it again.

We take our hat off to all those people who have made these community-wide programs successful.

To our readers:

This page in the Associated Newspapers is being made available to the residents of the communities we serve.

Anyone of any age is invited to submit an open letter to their community or to the editor of Associated Newspapers.

We will publish letters on any subject. If you feel you have a plan for solving a city problem, or wish to comment on someone else's plan, this space is being reserved for you.

If you or your group would like to address the community at large, or just an individual, this space is reserved for you.

If you think you can do it better, cheaper, faster, or with more flair, this is the place to tell everyone about it.

You are invited to send your opinions on events, or items of public interest, to the editor of Associated Newspapers, 35540 Michigan Avenue, Wayne 48184.

Names will be withheld from letters published only for very good reason. The reason must be included in the letter.

Capitol beckons visitors during Michigan Week

By EDWARD E. MAHALAK
State Representative
38th District

This is the year of Michigan's State Capitol Centennial.

A number of special observances will mark the 100th birthday of the handsome old domed structure. Most important, though, the citizens of Michigan are being urged to visit the Capitol in its centennial year. Tours of the building, which point out its elaborate and unusual features, are available.

Begun in 1872 and formally dedicated and opened in 1879, the exterior of the Capitol has been changed only slightly over the years. However, many changes have been made inside to accommodate a growing state government, but the natural woods, elaborate chandeliers, handpainted murals and the ornately decorated vastness of its dome are reminders of past elegance.

Basically, the Capitol today houses only the Legislature and the Executive Office. Other state branches, departments and agencies are located in the nearby Capitol Complex and in other facilities.

The 100-year-old structure was not Lansing's first Capitol, nor was Lansing the first seat of state government.

The first Capitol building was the old territorial capitol, located in what is now downtown Detroit. It was a two-story building with pillars across the front, 90 by 60 feet and located on a triangular plot of land. It was later used as school and, late in the century, was destroyed by fire.

In 1847, 10 years after Michigan officially became a State, the Legislature voted to move the Capitol from Detroit to a more centrally located site. After considerable debate and a number of suggested locations, what is now Lansing was selected as a compromise choice.

Lansing was a tiny settlement in the wilderness in 1847. There were only eight registered voters in Lansing Township and its only industry was one sawmill.

The Legislature originally voted to name the site Michigan, Michigan. Legislators soon tired of that name, however, and only a few months later renamed the Capitol City Lansing, in honor of a Revolutionary War hero, Charles Lansing.

In 1847, a "temporary capitol" was built about a block from the present site.

It was rectangular two-story frame building surrounded by a white fence. Several years later, an office building, also two-storied, was built in the center of the square now occupied by the present Capitol.

Both buildings proved to be inadequate to the needs of a growing government, and in 1871 Governor Henry P. Baldwin recommended the construction of a new Capitol building.

A board of building commissioners was established by the Legislature to select an architectural plan for the new structure. It chose a plan submitted by Elijah E. Myers, a Chicago architect.

Myers moved to Michigan to supervise the construction of the building and remained a resident until he died. He also designed capitol buildings for the states of Texas, Colorado, Utah and Idaho.

The Myers plan was chosen, according to Commissioners, because it was the simplest and least expensive to build. The original estimate of its cost was $1,200,000. The actual final cost was a surprisingly close $1,427,738.78. It has been estimated that it would cost $200 million to reproduce the same building today.

The cornerstone was laid October 2, 1873, with much ceremony. (The cornerstone was opened last fall, 100 years later. Unfortunately, because of a broken seal, much of what had been placed in it was badly damaged. What was salvaged from the cornerstone is on display at the Capitol).

The builders planned at first to use only Michigan materials in the new building, but the stone from Michigan quarries was not satisfactory, so the best materials from all over the world were combined in its construction, including Illinois limestone, Ohio sandstone, Massachusetts granite, Vermont marble, tin from Wales and plate glass from England.

Most symbolic of Michigan's natural resources are the beautiful natural woods and specially designed door knobs and chandeliers made from Michigan copper.

The workmanship was good and the Capitol remains today a solid structure. In the early 1960's a chemical spray was used to clean and restore the natural beauty of its walls after it was decided that sand-blasting was not safe for the sandstone surfaces. The white dome of the Capitol was repainted a few years ago.

Although the exterior has been changed only slightly since the Capitol was built, there have been additions and changes to the grounds.

In 1970, the Capitol was entered in the National Register of Historic Places.

There are a number of statues and monuments on the grounds. The most imposing, however, is the statue of Austin Blair directly in front of the building. Erected in 1898, it pays tribute to Michigan's Civil War Governor and "her citizen soldiers."

Above the ground story of the Capitol are Tuscan, Ionic and Corinthian columns. A two-story portico at the head of the outside stairway surmounts the central entrance with its three arched doorways.

The floodlighted Capitol dome is visible from miles away at night.

"Play it again Sam"

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

Not being a person who advocates rules for the sake of rules, I only reluctantly advocate new legislation to fill a large gaping hole in the law which allows school boards to encroach on our guaranteed freedoms to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

I am of course referring to the practice by school boards to badger voters for months, sometimes years, with elections every three months until they manage to wear us all down and gain the millage increases they seek.

This practice strikes me as being patently unfair and abusive of their delegate authority.

Up front I had best explain that I am not anti-education. Two of my four children currently attend public schools and the other two will shortly join them.

My concern with the school board dictated electoral harassment of voters stems from observing an obvious pattern which exists almost universally among school districts who have suffered millage rejections.

First, school boards and their superintendents, gnash their teeth. Next, through some magical insight the school officials decide that had more people voted, the millage would certainly have been approved. Then, they decide that it is their duty to parents and children alike to allow the community a second chance.

To allow the community a second chance.

I have no argument with school officials, both appointed and elected, working their collective rears off to provide a good education for my children, but I think I do resent them telling me they will be kind enough, at my expense, to offer a second chance for us to do it right, when a millage they have asked me to support, fails.

Correct me if I'm wrong, but it is my impression that our school officials are paid to administer a program of the highest calibre consistent with the funds the voters have agreed to spend for that purpose.

In Romulus, school millages were falling like leaves, but always one more was scheduled.

In Westland, voters rejected the first millage in 13 years and some concluded that action was not duly considered.

I think it is time for the school millage charade to come to an overdue end.

There are two methods available to accomplish that task.

The first: School boards should always schedule two elections when a millage increase is proposed to voters.

Should the millage pass, the second election would provide voters with a chance to reaffirm their position. Should the requested millage fail, the second vote would provide an opportunity for the voters to change their minds.

Or: The state should mandate that following a millage election, a period of one year must pass before another millage question could be presented to the voters.

Either way, the harassed voter would be granted some measure of relief.

Today, the cry is that school officials are able to call special elections as often as they see fit. But should a millage pass, anti-millage folk are not provided the same opportunity.

While my first suggestion is offered tongue-in-cheek, I do believe that the citizen is being subjected to an unfair system which hands school officials a pair of loaded dice.

How long can a concerned parent, who may feel that his schools are not operating efficiently, hold out against the impassioned pleas of orchestrated 6-year-olds?

How long can you hear that you are not concerned with your children's welfare, before you fear that such drive is true?

Today, it is not possible to resist school taxes without standing accused of 'throwing our kids to the wolves.'

Should the state ever require the one-year wait on a millage question, voters will be much more deliberative in their decision.

They would know that their kids would have to live with their decision for one year. And maybe that year would also provide school officials with time to learn how to produce more with less, if necessary.

What do you think?

"Great show"

EDITOR:

Along with neighbors, loved ones and an audience of various denominations, I had the pleasure of witnessing one of the most memorable cantatas I have ever seen. "NO GREATER LOVE" was superbly presented by the church choir, Saturday and Sunday nights, April 21st and 22nd, at the Bethany Baptist Church.

A truly meaningful and worshipful experience!

If only we, all of us, would allow ourselves to be daily reminded of His greater love, our families, countries, and nations would surely know the real Peace, Peace of God.

Many thanks to all the hard-working "crew" and cast: Director, Doyle Wise; Narrator, James Lightfoot; Sound and Lighting by Kevin Losen, and the whole choir.

Surely, you all must be very thankful and happy with the "fruits" of your labor.

I know I join with the audiences of both nights when I say, the Cantata, "NO GREATER LOVE" should not, cannot, be shelved.

The message of this presentation cannot be repeated often enough.

EDITOR:

Your recent editorial entitled, "Lawmakers Vote to Ignore a Citizen Mandate" is absent of some particular facts which can better state the position we have taken.

The editorial states the Legislature decided that Headlee really meant a "homeowner could only benefit from a roll-back if the local district was already assessing at the maximum allowable state rate at 18 mills."

The editorial further states that, since most communities in our areas have charter limitations, most at 10 mills, none can benefit from the roll-back provision. The fact is that any community levying and limited to 10 mills will indeed be required to roll back its millage and levy less by the House-passed HB 4232, if its SEV growth exceeds the inflation rate.

In brief, the House-passed bill implements exactly what the Headlee Amendment language says. Those who wish the Legislature to go further have every right to express those urgings, but to do so on the basis of any alleged "intent" is proving to be highly questionable practice. Already, Mr. Shaker, who drafted the rollback language, is in total disagreement with Mr. Headlee as to the intent of this provision.

The accountability language contained in HB 4232, was essentially a product of the Stabenow-Rocca amendment, which we supported. In effect, the amendment will require a local unit of government to conspicuously place an advertisement of an upcoming tax increase in a local newspaper. A public hearing must be held subsequent to publication of the advertisement and the elected local officials must either publicly support or reject the increase, after they have heard from the taxpayers.

By passing HB 4232, the House has preserved local control over local tax questions and has not inadvertently established a state-wide mandate that would likely be insensitive to the needs of a particular community. The net result will be that voters will have more direct input as to how their tax dollars are spent.

Reflections

A ball of fur,
a broken heart

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

The evening my father brought Buster home was an evening wrapped in the brilliant colors of the setting sun, and the smell of lilacs was heavy on the air.

We heard the Model-T roaring up the lane and my little sister and I went racing out to the back porch to greet our father.

Throwing his long legs over the car door he leaped to the ground. Turning, he reached into the car, bringing up from the depths a wriggling white and brown puppy.

"Here's your sisters, Buster," he said as he put the puppy down on the porch between us. Falling to the floor my sister and I wrapped our arms around it and snuggled our noses into the brown soft hair of its neck.

Although our father said the puppy was for us, it soon became apparent that Buster was his dog, for from morning to night the pup trotted close to him, helping to bring in the cows, barking at the chickens, and nipping at the horses.

Getting up in the morning was sort of a ritual with our father. We could hear him shout, "It's morning," and we would rush into to greet our parents, only to find him sitting on the side of the bed, yawning and rubbing his head.

That initial greeting of the day apparently exhausted him.

After he had received his second strength he would head for the front door, tucking his shirt into his pants on the way. Then opening the door he would shout, "Hey, Buster, it's morning, old boy," and Buster would come bounding across the lawn, leaping and licking and panting.

"Look how happy he is," our father would say as he ruffled the dog's hair. "See him grin?"

On school mornings our father would tell Buster to "take the girls to school" and the dog would wedge himself between us.

With our arms around his neck we would trudge down the long lane to the highway where we were to be picked up by the mailman, who gave us a ride to school.

On that half mile walk Buster protected us from all danger.

When the wind was up and the tumbleweeds tumbled menacingly towards us, he would charge at them and push them away with his nose. When the cattle in the pasture wandered too close to the fence and my little sister would grab me in fear, while my own heart stopped beating, Buster would chase them away.

We had faith in his courage! After school he was always there waiting for us to bring us back up the lane to home. After he had made sure we were safe inside he trotted out to the fields to find his master, and finally after his day's work was done, he would sit with his head in my father's lap, roll his eyes at all of us and fall asleep.

One gloriously beautiful morning in May, after we had had Buster for a few years, the birds had awakened me early and I tiptoed to the front door. Buster was lying on the lawn, the breezes rippling his white and brown hair.

"Here Buster," I whispered, but he didn't budge. I heard my father behind me.

"Hey Buster, it's morning, old boy!" But the 'old boy' just lay there. My father whistled and I called. Buster didn't move.

My father took a leap from the porch and ran to his pet. Kneeling down he reached for the dog's head. And then we saw him pull the dog against him and hold him while he rocked back and forth.

"What's the matter, what's the matter?" we called and raced across the lawn. Our father looked up, the dog cradled in his arms, tears streaking down his face. "Buster is dead," he said.

He didn't eat breakfast. Instead, he tenderly wrapped his dog in one of his flannel shirts and carefully laid him on the seat of the Model T. Cranking the car, he crawled over the front door, and without a word, without a backward look, he drove down the lane, his dead dog lying beside him.

We didn't see him again until evening. A long time later he took us to Buster's grave, a mound of dirt under a sagebrush close to the river.

"I placed him so he could see the sunrise," our father said and as he spoke a breeze rippled the sagebrush and we heard a lone bird's call.

Congress - President Playing
'Energy' Political Games

By Edwin Feulner

Congress and the Carter Administration seem to be playing political games with one of our most serious, pressing problems. The energy ball is being tossed back and forth — lots of talk and score-keeping — and nothing much is being done.

Speaking recently at the National Conference on Energy Advocacy, hosted by the Heritage Foundation, Margaret Bush Wilson, Chairwoman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, spoke out against the tendency to use our energy dilemma as a political forum.

As Mrs. Wilson put it, "if the Congress and the Administration continue to engage in a tennis match with energy policy, it will be a love game and the American public will be out."

It's pretty nerve-wracking to be a spectator at such proceedings.

That lumbering giant, the federal bureaucracy, also attempts to play — in its own way. Describing it as a "monster" protecting itself rather than the public it serves, Mrs. Wilson said that far from helping, it does actual harm. The government "must be made to lead in ensuring that the country develop abundant, affordable energy supplies that will promote vigorous economic growth," she said.

"We are well aware as well that free market forces hardly apply anymore to energy prices. At work, instead, is an archaic system of regulations that are rapidly crumbling by their own weight and the unpredictable nature of forces and developments abroad.

"Furthermore, the U.S. has for so long been complacent about developing new energy sources that it is now almost at the mercy of fate."

While it is a major thrust of the NAACP's policy that the national government lead in ensuring abundant, affordable energy supplies to promote vigorous economic growth, helping relieve the burden laid on minorities, the old and the poor, Mrs. Wilson pointed out the danger to all American citizens. "Let us guard against the misconception," she said, "that it is only the disadvantaged who will be hurt by sharply rising oil prices." For example, unstable world oil prices are among the major factors contributing to inflation.

"We live in a rapidly changing world," said Mrs. Wilson, "which, in these times of profound social and economic upheavals, test our will to survive in ways unknown to earlier generations. The American economic system is increasingly showing signs of the strain.

"Its inadequacies are glaring. The boom-recession cycles are recurring with troubling frequency. At the same time, hardcore social problems intensify." She makes her point. It hardly sounds like a game, however.

(Feulner is president of The Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research institute.)

House OK's hike in MHDA bonding

Major legislation doubling the bonding limit for the Michigan Housing Development Authority to $1.8 million has been approved by the State House of Representatives, according to State Rep. Edward Mahalak (D-38th District).

The measure allows the authority to make new loans totalling $900 million, doubling its debt limit to $1.8 million. The current limit of $900 million is all obligated, Mahalak said.

The proposal also eliminates income restrictions to allow the authority to make housing loans to upper income people. It permits loans "without regard to income" people in distressed areas. Such distressed areas have to be cities of 10,000 or more and must have been declared blighted areas by the local governing board.

The bill also requires that at least 15 percent of those loans in blighted areas be to people who get either federal or state income assistance. No more than 5 percent of all the authority's outstanding notes can go for the loans for housing programs open to all income levels.

"By lifting restrictions on income supporters hope that more middle and upper income will move into decayed urban areas," Mahalak said. "Supporters also conceded, however, that most loans will still go for lower income people and low income housing projects."

The bill puts a June 30, 1984, deadline on the housing authority issuing loans and bonds and also requires the authority to submit a report on the impact the bill has had.

Mahalak went on to say that a bill to ensure that a person unemployed suddenly after a long illness or disability could still get unemployment benefits by preserving the necessary credit weeks already earned.

Under the current law a person cannot receive unemployment benefits unless he or she had worked at least 14 weeks over the previous year. However, in some cases, individuals have been sick or disabled for more than a year, then laid off or fired before they can work another 14 weeks to be eligible for unemployment relief, Mahalak explained.

For individuals in these situations, the bill would require that credit weeks be maintained as if there was no disability or illness.

To apply the disabled person would have to notify the Michigan Employment Security Commission within 45 days after the disability begins. Such applications would also require a physician's statement, Mahalak said.

Historical Society hosts promenade of 11 old houses

The Tecumseh Historical Society, Presbyterian Women's Association and the Tecumseh Area Chamber of Commerce have teamed up to sponsor "Promenade the Past 1979," a tour of 11 historical structures, May 19 and 20.

Designed to offer practical ideas for conserving structures and to show the benefits of restoration, the tour will kick off the community's Michigan Week observance.

A part of the tour will be the 1865 First United Presbyterian Church, the B. J. Pulver House (circa 1912), the Jule Anderson House (1900), the S. W. Anderson House (1880) with its steep gables and pointed windows, the brick Italianate villa-style home of C. A. Stacy (1848), the square-shaped bracketed Italianate home of J. S. Strong (1878), the Bidwell Exchange (1852), the William Hayden House (1852), Tecumseh's first Catholic church. (1913), the Carson Small Farms with its 19th century Victorian farmhouse and the Sutton Place (1853).

In conjunction with the tour there will be an Antique and Old Craft Sidewalk Market, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, in the downtown area from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days, while an international lunch will be served in the Tecumseh High School cafeteria on May 20 by the band boosters. It costs $4 per person.

Tickets for the promenade cost $3 in advance and $4 on tour. Senior citizens and students (18 years and under) will be charged $3. Tickets can be obtained from the Tecumseh Area Historical Society, P.O. Box 26, Tecumseh 49286.

Know your laws

(This is one in a series of public service articles, explaining in general terms a provision of Michigan law. Individuals who wish to determine the effect of any law on their private legal affairs should consult with a private attorney.)
By ATT. GEN. FRANK KELLEY

Freedom of speech has always been cherished by the American people as a Constitutional right — with both the United States and Michigan constitutions clearly prohibiting any activities of government which may infringe on freedom of speech.

But freedom of speech is of little value, if government or anyone else is allowed to eavesdrop or otherwise monitor private conversations.

As the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis said: "The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the government, the right to be let alone"

This respect for individual privacy is so valued that it cannot be cast aside by police or law enforcement agencies in their fight against crime — particularly when it comes to electronic eavesdropping on private conversations.

One form of electronic eavesdropping — wiretapping — is prohibited in Michigan except in rare cases. Even then, authorities must first get court authorization which requires a showing of probable cause of criminal activity.

Another form of electronic eavesdropping is so called Third-Party Monitoring, referring to the practice of concealing a radio transmitter on an informant or undercover police officer who then talks to a suspect. The conversation between the informant and the suspect usually is transmitted to recorder and subsequently used as evidence.

While wiretapping usually is illegal in Michigan, third-party monitoring is not, although state law requires that a search warrant be issued by a court before it is done.

Wiretapping is considered a breach of Constitutional freedom partly because it represents an intrusion into the privacy of two or more unwilling people. However, because third-party monitoring requires that at least one of the parties be a willing participant to the eavesdropping, it is not considered to be an invasion of privacy.

Although federal courts do not require that a search warrant be obtained prior to government personnel engaging in Participant Monitoring, Michigan courts do require that a proper search warrant be issued in order to obtain admissible evidence by this means.

Perhaps the reason for Michigan's law being contradictory to federal law is best summarized by Justice Harlan: "Authority is hardly required to support the proposition that words would be measured a good deal more carefully and communication inhibited, if one suspected his conversations were being transmitted and transcribed. Were third-party bugging a prevalent practice, it might well smother that spontaneity—reflected in frivolous, impetuous, sacrilegious, and defiant discourse—that liberates daily life."

I fully support Michigan's more restrictive limitations on eavesdropping because of the potential danger that unrestricted third-party monitoring could have on our cherished freedom.

Rains stop Franklin, Glenn '9s'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

In the words of Mork, the eggman from Ork, "shazbal".

Rains again wiped out the confrontation between Westland John Glenn and Livonia Franklin who were scheduled to meet on the Westland-based high school's diamond Friday.

"It was just too muddy to play on our field," said Norm Hoenes who has suffered a rash of setbacks lately. "We did get a league game in last week though, but unfortunately it didn't rain on that day."

Meanwhile, Franklin won its opener, 3-2, over Redford Union, a newcomer to the Northwest Suburban. And first year Franklin coach Gerry Cullin is pleased at his team's over-all performance.

"Our kids are doing a superb job," Cullin said. "We're 4-2 on the season and everything is falling into place."

Cullin pointed out that the washed out game with Glenn will probably be played at Franklin on May 15 as part of a doubleheader. In the meantime the Patriots are preparing for the annual Walt Cosens-Les Anders Memorial Tournament which is scheduled for Saturday at Ford Field, (Farmington Rd., one-mile north of Schoolcraft Rd.)

The tournament is sponsored by the Livonia Optimist Club.

In the first round, Franklin drew Churchill for the 10 a.m. game and Stevenson takes on Bentley at 1 p.m. There is a 4 p.m. consolation game between the losers; the championship will be decided at 7 p.m.

"I really don't know too much about Churchill or Bentley because they, too, apparently have not been able to play many games because of the weather. However, we did beat Stevenson last week, but when you get into a tournament situation a lot can change."

Cullin sent pitcher Jeff Aguzzi to the mound against Stevenson and he managed to hold the Spartans for two and one-third innings before he was relieved by Craig Jones.

Jones, trailing 5-4 at the time of his appearance, got credit for the 10-5 victory.

Franklin led 3-1 after the first inning, 4-2 in the second then trailed 5-4 as the Spartans rallied for three runs in the third. Franklin came back and scored a run in the fourth to tie it up at 5-all, then broke the game open with three runs in the fifth and two more in the sixth.

Chris Baker, who has been coming through with the big ones for the Patriots, slapped a run-scoring triple and a sacrifice fly while Gary DeYonker chipped in with a single and double which accounted for two runs batted in.

A two-out, bases-loaded last of the seventh single by Herb McManaway lifted the Patriots to a 3-2 victory over visiting Redford Union last week. It marked Cullin's debut as a coach in the league.

Redford Union scored in the top of the fourth to cut Franklin's lead to 2-1, then tied it up in the fifth, but the Patriots got to loser Tim Hunter for the winning run on DeYonker's walk, who was forced by John Mazurek at second, then Doug White singled, with Mazurek's holding at third. With first base open, Hunter gave Baker an intentional walk, (Baker had three consecutive hits), loading the bases and bringing up equally dangerous McManaway.

McManaway then laced a single to drive in the winning run.

Ken Webster went the distance to pick up his second win in as many outings. The senior righthander struck out six and walked five in fashioning a two-hitter.

Hunter gave up 10 hits, three to Baker and two to DeYonker and McManaway in taking the loss. He had five strikeouts and walked four.

Glenn's Jeff Cesarz looked good until the seventh when North Farmington exploded for six runs to win the 9-1 conference game. Cesarz went 6 and two-thirds innings, struck out two and walked seven before Coach Norm Hoenes decided on a reliever.

North had a 3-0 lead going into the bottom of the fourth when the Westlanders got to starter. Dave Fredericks for their only run. But it was enough for Fredericks who was yanked in that inning and replaced by Mike Thompson.

"At the beginning of the season I felt that our forte would be pitching," said Hoenes whose team is sporting a 4-5 over-all and an 0-1 league record. "A series of injuries to my pitchers has caused us a lot of problems."

Hoenes lost starting hurler Jeff Bronson, a righthanded junior, to a broken ankle sustained in a gym class, while Pat Kaltenbach and Ralph McKenzie also are coming off of injuries sustained in an auto mishap.

Of the four Glenn victories, two are owned by senior Rick Knurek who has been carrying the Rockets during most of the early part of the season.

Glenn will be back on the home field Friday afternoon when Garden City East invades Westland.

Duel under the nets

Volleyball is a game of "spiking" and "setting up" and when Wayne's two arch-rivals, the Bee-Jays and LaParisien, met recently there was a lot of both. The Bee-Jays managed to upset their rivals and won the City Championships. For pictures of the team turn to the Fifth Sports Page.

A story about friendships

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Few persons ever forget bottle-throwing incidents, especially if they're the targets.

Al Wilkerson, the young and energetic track and field coach at Romulus High School, doesn't recall the incident that permanently scarred the athletic relationship between Romulus High and Wayne Memorial.

It happened a handful of years ago, after a football game. Wayne busses were treated to rock-slingers and bottle throwers who, as is usually the case, weren't students of the school but were school rejects and vandals.

But the melee forced Wayne Memorial school officials to sever the school's relations with Romulus and during the intervening years nothing has been done to mend the damage.

"People seem to remember and like to remember the bad things that happen," points out Coach Wilkerson, a former all-state cager from Adrian High who has put together the pieces of a lethargic track program and made it a respectable one.

"Did you know that Wayne High and Romulus High track team members sit together as a group during meets we attend?" asked Wilkerson. "And that a friendship has blossomed between these two teams?"

Why?

"What do you mean, 'Why'?" Yes, 'Why?'. Why should two teams — one predominately 'black' and the other predominately 'white' — "salt and pepper" — if you will — who have little in common and have in the past had their mutual misunderstandings suddenly strike up an acquaintance and seek friendship?

Wilkerson hesitated before offering an explanation. Then said: "I think its our coaching staffs. You see, both my assistant coach, Larry Thomas, and Wayne's Ernie Righetti, competed against one another in high school.

"And Ernie and myself have nurtured a friendship over the past five years," Wilkerson continued. "And we began exchanging ideas and helping each other out when possible.

"Our kids began sitting together at the meets and rooting for one another and everything has just been working out. I think it was Al McGuire, the ex-Marquette cage coach who said it, 'that a team is an extension of a coach's personality' and our staffs — Wayne and Romulus' are basically compatible."

Wilkerson said he believed that "there should be more of these kinds of positive exchanges between schools and people because that's what life is all about."

I don't think you'd find anyone who would argue that point.

Weather doesn't stop preps

Wasn't it Will Rogers who said, "that everyone talks about the weather, but no one does anything about it?"

Well, there is a group of area high school coaches who would like to tell the weatherman just where to go. Here it is "mid-season" according to the schedules and most track coaches have run but one meet.

"It is the worst Spring that I can recall," said Bill Hawley, Wayne Memorial athletic director. "I really don't know if we're going to re-schedule these cancelled events because we just don't have the time."

One thing, though, this may have been the winter of our discontent but the elements didn't detour high school athletic fans from attending games in record throngs.

That fact is backed by a recent Michigan High School Athletic Association statistical sheet which shows that fans attended winter sports events in record numbers.

"This winter was one of the hardest and most bitter in Michigan's long history," the MHSAA writes. "Record snows were recorded in a majority of the state's cities and rural areas, halting most activities."

"But, with the results in now from all seven winter sports tournaments sponsored by the MHSAA, statistics show that over 38,000 high school students participated at some tournament level while over 740,000 fans cheered on their favorite teams."

"Now, even as the excitement of those tournaments, and the snow gives way to green grass and blue skies — work continues on the new season and the tournaments yet to come. It is certain that high school athletes and the fans will be ready — for whatever the weather ... it's good weather for Michigan high school athletics," the release concluded.

Personally, I think the MHSAA release should have quit when it was ahead. Vern L. Norris, the executive director of the MHSAA, and his staff apparently haven't been out of doors lately ... and it rained for 40 days and 40 nights, the Good Book said ...

Tolson is a triple winner at Bedford Invitational

Doug Tolson, groomed as one of the finest distance runners to be produced in the area, carded three victories to help Wayne Memorial finish third at the 9-team Bedford Temperance Track & Field Invitational held Saturday during a constant rainfall and cold weather.

The 17-year-old Wayne High junior turned in a 9:49 in winning the 2-mile run, posted a 4:32 for his victory in the mile run and led teammate Mark Michalowski across the finish line for a 1-2 finish for the half-mile. The winning time was posted at 2:02.5.

Tolson's outstanding performances during the poorest of weather conditions provided Coach Ernie Righetti's Zebras with the bulk of their 59 points. Wayne finished third, behind Monroe (a Great Lakes 8 Conference rival) which had 91, and Ypsilanti, which was runner-up with 78.

However, Wayne had only a half-point cushion over fourth place Romulus which garnered 58½ points, while Belleville finished sixth.

Righetti was pleased at his team's progress.

"I thought we did a fantastic job at Bedford," Righetti commented. "We're maturing. Our relays did well and we're beginning to score a few points in the field events. I feel we'll be all right."

Wayne received a third place finish from its 880-yard relay team as Ted Doumainen, Eric Seigler, Larry Wilson and Michalowski were clocked in 1:37.1 Jim Zerna was fourth in the pole vault (11'6") and the combination of Doumainen, Bruce Gaudi, Seigler and Wilson gave the Zebras a fourth-place finish in the 440-yard relay (46.6).

Ray Carswell, Ken Taube, Darryl Hamlin and Michalowski finished fourth in the mile relay (3:39.0).

The Zebras received points from Joe Tonna, a fifth place finisher in the 330-yard low hurdles and a sixth place from Dave McCahill in the discus (119'0").

Zebra drop first 2 in Great Lakes 8

McCue shuts out Wayne, 4-0

Maybe it would have been better if Wayne Memorial and Coach Jim Chronowski had been rained out.

Wayne, one of the few teams that managed to beat the rains last week, lost its first two Great Lakes 8 Conference baseball games as Truman's Ron McCue shut out the Zebras 4-0 on Tuesday after Fordson beat them 12-4.

"When we get the pitching, we don't get the hitting and vice-versa," noted Coach Chronowski whose Zebras aren't 0-2 in the conference. "And I have to feel that the erratic weather has something to do with our inconsistency on the diamond."

McCue scattered a pair of Wayne hits, struck out eight and walked two in six full innings of work, while his counterpart, Mark Zerna, went the distance, gave up four hits and four runs, three of which were unearned.

It was also the first time this season that Wayne received a complete game out of one of its pitchers.

McCue's chances for a no-hitter ended early in the ball game when Dan Perusse beat out an infield dribbler for a single. The only other Wayne hit came with two-out in the fourth when Ken Browe smacked an opposite field double.

Truman scored one run in the second, then erupted for three more in the fifth to chalk up their initial win of the league campaign.

Wayne's arch-rival, Fordson, struck for five runs in the second inning before exchanging three runs in the third and going on to a conference-opening day victory over the Zebras.

Chronowski used four hurlers in hopes of stopping the Tractors. He started with junior righthander Bill Fox who lasted until the second and was yanked with two-away. He was followed by Roger Breeding who inherited a 6-1 deficit and was relieved in the third when he gave up a three-run homer. Phil Wilson then took over and pitched until the sixth when junior Larry Reed was called upon for the final two putouts.

Wayne tied the score at 1-all in the top of the second when Zerna led off with a walk, stole second and was chased home on Bill Spaw's double.

Monroe thinclads shatter's Romulus hope of perfection

Romulus' dreams for a perfect track season were swiftly put to rest by a highly-touted Monroe contingent last week as the Eagles suffered their first setback of the campaign, 77-55.

Tied at 50-all after the low hurdles, Coach Al Wilkerson and Romulus could whip up but five points in the final four events.

"Monroe convinced me that it is one of the top teams in Western Wayne County," said Wilkerson whose minions had lost only four of their last 29 dual meet outings.

"I thought we ran quite well, considering the circumstances," Wilkerson added. "We just didn't have enough to match their over-all strength."

One of those circumstances Wilkerson apparently referred to was Monroe's 6-7, 220-pound senior Dave Roussey who swept both the 100 (10.1) and 220 (23.0) yard dashes, the shot put, then anchored the winning mile relay team.

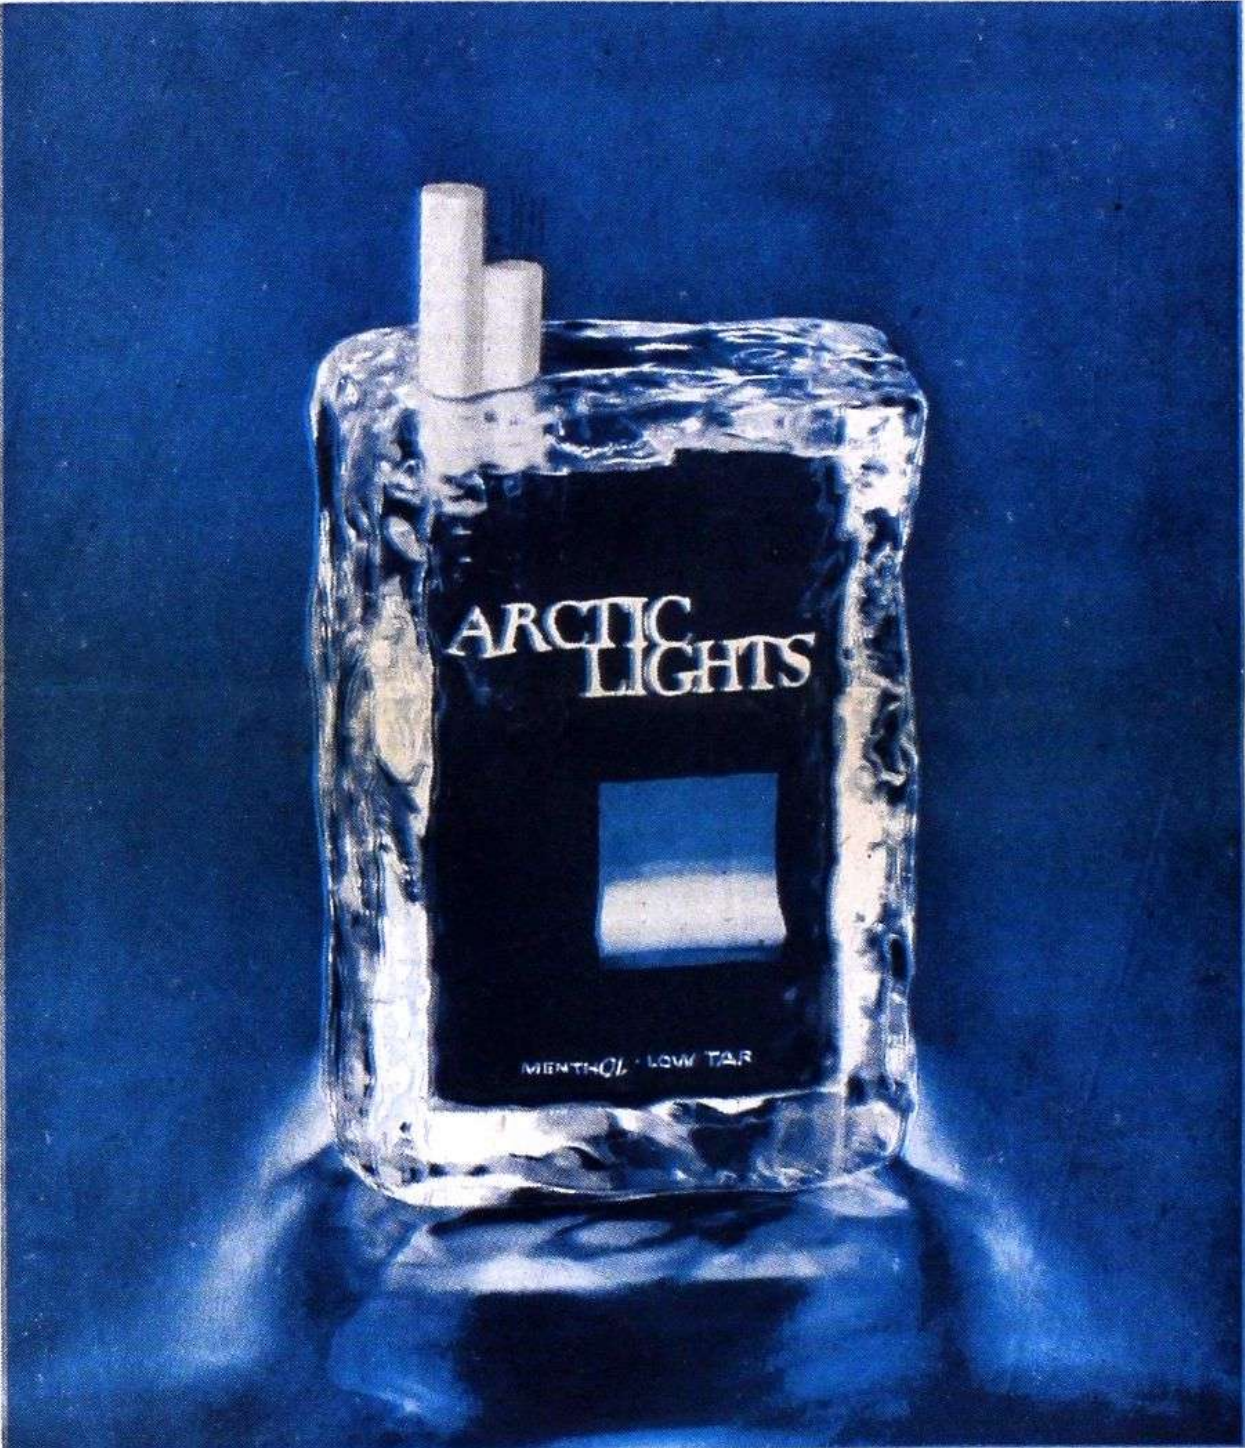

Romulus had its share of winners thanks to Donald Grandison who captured the long jump competition with a leap of 22 feet, 5 inches and figured in the winning of the 440-yard relay as he teamed with Charles Scott, Richard Lewis and Larry Young for the victory.

There were at least eight jumpers who cleared the 20-foot marker in the broad jump and that typifies the quality of competition Romulus ran up against.

Lewis and David Earle placed 1-2 in the high hurdles with a 15.0 and 15.3 respectively, while James Davis and Lee Beregasay also provided the Eagles with a 1-2 finish for the quarter-mile.

Romulus also dominated the mile run with David Helmuth and Franklin Holliday who finished 1-2 in the event.

After competing in the Western Wayne Relays Tuesday night, the Eagles will keep in shape with one-a-day practices until Saturday, May 5 when they are invited to compete in the Wayne Memorial Relays. On Tuesday, May 8, the Eagles resume dual meet competition at Clarenceville.

Franklin track season has winning start

Twice detoured by inclement weather and rains, Livonia Franklin and Coach Bob Holmes finally managed to unveil their track machine last week with cross-town rivals, Churchill, providing the first test.

Holmes' Patriots wiped out the perennial power, 74-58, to get their delayed track season off to a winning start.

"Well, we finally got going," Coach Holmes said, "and I'm pretty satisfied at our team's performance. In fact, any time we can beat a team of Churchill's caliber, you have to be happy."

Franklin, the defending Northwest Suburban Conference champ, is scheduled to meet Westland

John Glenn and newcomer-to-the-league, Redford Union, on Tuesday in a triangular make-up meet.

"If we can get the triangular meet in, then we'll be caught up," Holmes said.

Churchill's Ralph Jarnot and Franklin's Don Boka split four of the five field events with Jarnot winning both the long jump and the high jump, while Boka claimed the shot put and discus competitions.

But Franklin had too much in the way of relay power. Holmes swept all 15 points, taking the 880-yard relay in 1:35.4, the 440 in 46.5 and the mile in 3:39.8 to continue for the second year their domination over the Western Six Conference champs.

Belleville tracksters stop Salem in opener

Belleville overcame the elements and Plymouth Salem last Thursday to open the Suburban 8 Conference track & field phase of the shivering season with a 78-53 victory over Plymouth Salem.

"The weather was miserable," said Belleville Coach Dave Medley, "but the one consolation is that we won."

Belleville captured 10 of the 16 events with Charles Blackmon accounting for first in the 100-yard dash and helping the Tiger 880-yard relay pick up five key points.

It was Salem's Rich Hanschu however, who was the lone double winner in the meet as he chalked up victories in the long jump and high hurdles and helped the Rocks win the 440-yard relay.

Belleville will try to make it two straight in the conference at the expense of a tough Edsel Ford team on Thursday, while Salem is at home to Trenton, a team that has never figured in the conference championship picture since the inception of the league eight years ago.

Ex All-Area ball players star at EMU

Two former members of All-Area baseball clubs have launched the 1979 baseball season at Eastern Michigan University in excellent fashion.

Plymouth Canton's Brian Stemberger, a senior shortstop, continues to lead the EMU hitting assault with .358 batting average. He has 22 runs batted in.

Wayne's Pat Sheridan, a junior center fielder, also had an outstanding week with 11 hits in 28 at bats for a hefty .393 average. Pat has knocked in three runs, homered twice and had three stolen bases.

In track, former Westland John Glenn shot-putter, Barry Summers, set a Huron varsity record with a 53 feet, 9 inch put.

Rains wash out Romulus ball schedule

Rains wiped out Romulus' baseball schedule last week and Coach Dennis Stoh and his Eagles will try to pick up the pieces again this week.

"I don't know if we're going to be able to reschedule these games because most of the teams have league commitments and they come before non-league ones," Coach Stoh pointed out.

"That's one of the evils of not being affiliated with a league — you're not assured of playing after a rain-out," Stoh added.

Romulus will enter the week with a 3-4 won-lost record. The Eagles have a doubleheader on Monday at home against Dearborn Divine Child, play Flat Rock Woodhaven away on Wednesday then host Dearborn Heights Annapolis on Friday.

Leading the Eagles' at the plate in the early phase of the season is outfielder John Bozelak who has compiled a .388 batting average to keep in step with his records for the past two years. As a sophomore Bozelak batted .390, and made All-Area a year ago after hitting the ball at a .380 clip.

Robichaud finishes 5th at Central Relays

Robichaud's Leit Jones may have paid a higher price than he wanted to for his team's fifth place finish Saturday at the Detroit Central Relays.

Jones lost the services of all-state candidate Darryl Goree who pulled a hamstring muscle while running in the 880-yard relay.

"I don't know when he'll be back," Coach Jones said, "and obviously that's going to hurt this team. You don't lose a quality athlete like Goree and not pay the price."

Robichaud finished fifth to Detroit DePorres, a team that the Dearborn Heights' thinclads had beaten in a toe-to-toe triangular meet. The Detroiters amassed 106 points to finish atop of a field at Central made up of 24 top-notched teams. The host, Central, was second (95), followed by Detroit Redford (73).

Robichaud saw only one of its members earn a gold medal. Calvin Townsend proved to be the top shot putter at the meet as he came up with a put of 50 feet, 9 inches.

Before he was sidelined with the injury, Goree managed to finish second in the high hurdles with a 14.7. Teammate Mark Woodson also finished second in the 100-yard dash, hitting the wire in an enviable 9.7 seconds.

Robichaud's 880-yard relay team of James Rhea, Bruce Swasey, Darryl Goree and Woodson turned in the third best time (1:32.2).

Woodson was clocked in 22.2 for a third place in the 220-yard dash and Bruce Brock's 10:05.1 earned for him a third place medal in the 2-mile run.

Robichaud had the fourth best discus thrower in Robert Johnson who had a heave of 124 feet, 11 inches and Brock came back with a 4:37.1 in placing fourth in the mile run. Terry Ross' two-minutes flat for the half-mile was good enough for another fourth.

Fifth places went to Clarence Massey, in the shot put (44'10"), Bruce Swasey in the 330-yard low hurdles (40.2) and Terry Ross, in the 2-mile run (10:35).

"The weather was at its worst," Coach Jones pointed out. "It was cold and raining constantly, but those were common denominators for all of the athletes. We got some reasonable performances but I felt we could have done better."

After participating in the Western Wayne Relays Tuesday night, Jones and his Bulldogs will travel to Wayne Memorial on Saturday to compete in the sixth annual Wayne Invitational.

Tolson is triple winner at Bedford Invitational

Romulus' Donald Grandison and Richard Lewis returned from their long trip to Bedford with a pair of gold medals. Grandison's 6 feet, 4 inch effort in the high jump was the top performance in that event and Lewis led teammate David Earle to the wire in the high hurdles. Lewis' winning time was recorded as 14.9.

Coach Al Wilkerson put together the second best 880-yard relay team in the meet with Michael Scott, Earle, Lewis and Larry Young covering the distance in 1:35.4. They lost out to Ypsilanti which turned in a 1:35.1.

In the 440-yard relay, Grandison, Scott, Lewis and Young churned out a 45.5, second to Monroe's 45.3. The Eagles also placed fourth with Darren Cline in the shot put (44'11"), Derrick Humphries in the discus (121'9"), and Grandison, in the long jump (20'11"), while Young was fifth in the 220 (23.8) and Lewis was sixth in the high jump (5'8").

Belleville had the runners-up to Tolson both in the two-mile where Darryl Thompson was clocked in 9:58.6 and in the mile where Bob Oakley was second (4:35.0) and Thompson was third (4:38), respectively.

Charles Blackmon ran a 23.9 in finishing fourth for the 220 and he was fifth in the 100-yard dash when he crossed the finish line in 10.3. The Tigers also received a fifth place from Jim Ducey in the discus (120'0), and Mark Priest was tied for fifth in the pole vault (11'6").

Coach Dave Medley's 880-yard relay team of Gill Royster, Brian Brinkerhoff, Gary Few and Blackmon finished fourth in 1:36, and the 440-yard foursome of Cecil Kroger, Royster, Blackmon and Barry Reddick was fifth. Brinkerhoff chipped in a fifth place with his 41.5 performance for the 330-yard low hurdles.

Salem, Edsel humble Belleville

Belleville's Dan Fisher was hoping to get off to a fast start in the Great Lakes 8 baseball conference.

But Edsel Ford and Plymouth Salem had other ideas and wrecked the Tiger chances by handing them two straight conference losses last week.

Behind Mark Tschirhart's one-hitter, Edsel jolted Belleville 4-0 in the conference opener last Tuesday, then Salem sank the Tigers 6-2 in their second outing.

"We felt our strong suite would be hitting this year," Coach Fisher said, "but that just hasn't been so. We've been playing catch-up, and that takes a lot away from what you hope to do."

Tschirhart was tough on the Tigers as he notched four strikeouts, walked three and missed a much-coveted no-hitter in the seventh when Tim Mercurio led off with a single.

The Dearbornites got to losing pitcher Mike Vance, a junior righthander, for five hits, two of those in a two-run third inning. The T-Birds also scored one run in each of the fourth and fifth innings. Vance also went the distance, fanned seven and walked three.

Salem exploded for three runs in the first inning off of loser Tim Wallace who settled down and pitched shutout ball for the next three innings before yielding single runs in the last three innings.

Wallace also whiffed one and walked four, giving up seven hits for seven innings of work.

Salem's Matt Etienne was in control most of the way as he twirled a six-hitter, giving up six walks and striking out seven. A walk to Larry Cicotte, a single by Paul Arnette and an error led to Belleville's first run for the conference campaign, a third inning tally against Salem.

Belleville also got to Etienne for a run in the fourth on Mike Stoelton's grounder which scored Rick Elgas who had walked, moved to second on a wild pitch and third via a sacrifice.

In the fifth, Paul Arnette walked and scored on Kevin Fry's double.

Salem got on the board in the first with a one-away walk to Sam Merrill who moved to second when Jim Andersen walked. Dave Wilcox was struck by a wild pitch, loading the bases, and Merrill scored on Etienne's groundout. A wild pitch scored the second run and Paul Dillon's first hit of the game produced the third run.

The Rocks picked up a run in the fifth as Chris Hannan opened with a single, was forced at second by Paul Woodrow who moved to second on Merrill's base hit. Both runners moved up on a wild pitch and Woodward scored on Anderson's fielder's choice.

In the sixth, Dillon came through with his third hit of the game, a single, stole second and raced home when Barry Owens sliced a base hit. Salem collected its final run in the seventh on a Merrill single who stole second, made it to third on an error and subsequently scored on Anderson's ground ball.

Belleville will try to snap a two-game conference losing streak at the expense of Trenton, a team the Tigers were scheduled to meet on Tuesday. They'll await Westland John Glenn for an out-of-league doubleheader on Saturday before resuming league play on Monday at Allen Park.

The Tigers were sporting a 1-5 won-lost record as the week commences.

City volleyball champs

An impressive 4-3 victory over the LeParisien's earned for the Bee-Jays the Wayne Parks and Recreation's Volleyball City Championship. The Bee-Jays' line-up included: Sharon McMasters (from left) captain Mary Porter, Kathy Hayes and Carol Solada; second row are Audrey Gasdorf and Sally Levay. Not available at the time of the photo is Theresa Sharpe.

Spartans edged 9-8

1st league loss is 10 inning heartbreaker for Cherry Hill

With Schafer in its mitt, Cherry Hill let its Tri-River Conference baseball rival get away, 9-8, in a 10 inning marathon game.

Coach Ken Mientkiewicz' Spartans took a 8-6 top of the seventh inning lead in their initial confrontation with the Eagles, but Schafer came up with two unearned runs in the bottom of that inning to tie it up, then scored the decisive run in the 10th to hand the Spartans their first setback in the young campaign.

The loss left Cherry Hill with a 1-1 conference and a 3-4 over-all record. "We seem to make a key mistake at very crucial times which prove costly," Coach Mientkiewicz pointed out. "It was our game and we gave it away."

Losing pitcher Rick Searcy went the distance, struck out 14 and walked four while twirling a nine-hitter. The Spartans wasted Searcy's five hits, including a first inning solo homer and a pair of doubles.

Winning pitcher John Holtz survived an 18-hit barrage by the Spartans who received four hits, including a double, from Mark Friar.

Cherry Hill appeared to have the game all sewed up when, in the seventh, after two were out, Dave O'Koney singled, moved to second on Jerome Potvin's single. Then, Friar laced a run-scoring base hit and with men on first and third, Friar stole second. Both runners raced home when Bill Walters slashed a two-run single.

Cherry Hill also dropped a 1-0 out-of-league decision to Clarenceville earlier in the week. O'Koney, making his first appearance as a Spartan hurler, gave up three hits, struck out six and walked two.

Clarenceville's Tom Johnson pitched a five-hitter, scattering singles to Pat Sasseen, Ted Salvatori, Brian Hewitt and a double to O'Koney.

The Spartans had runners on third a couple of times but couldn't come up with the run-producing hit. Mientkiewicz' troops did win their league opener, a 7-5 verdict over Southgate last month as Potvin evened up his pitching record to 1-1 on the year. He struck out three and walked five and received relief help from Hewitt who put out the last two batters in the seventh.

The Spartans scored a run in the first inning, but Southgate put two runs on the board in the third, added another in the fourth to take a 3-1 lead before the Spartans rallied for three runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings to seal the victory.

Salvatori came through with three hits, including an over-the-fence homer in the first inning, and Searcy was perfect in three appearances at the plate, getting a pair of doubles to boot.

Weather permitting, Cherry Hill will make up a rained out game with Melvindale on Thursday and host Garden City West on Friday. Melvindale, with victories over Taylor Kennedy and Melvindale, has been established the early title favorite in the Tri-River Conference.

18 area teams gun for Wayne track title

Some of the best high school track and field athletes in the state will be gunning for gold medals Saturday when Wayne Memorial hosts its sixth annual invitational.

"Despite the inclement weather we have been having in these parts," noted Bill Hawley, athletic director at Wayne Memorial, "there have been some excellent times and performances by area teams."

"I feel Saturday's meet will generate a lot of excellent competition because of the caliber of teams that have been invited to compete."

Among those which have been extended invitations are Trenton, the defending champ, Ypsilanti, undefeated thus far this season, Dearborn Fordson, Westland John Glenn, Adrian, Detroit Cass, Belleville, Romulus, Dearborn Heights Robichaud, Taylor Kennedy, Taylor Truman, Taylor Center and Garden City East.

The athletes will be competing in seven relays, three open events: 2-mile, high hurdles and the 100-yard dash, along with five field events.

There is a 50 cents admission charge for students and $1 adult admission charge.

Competition will get underway at 10 a.m. Saturday with finals scheduled for 1 p.m.

potpourri

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

I've suddenly come to the realization that BG is probably (note, I said "probably") right when he answered my question "Are we ever going to get back to normal?" with "I don't think there is such a thing as normal anymore, do you?"

Our timing for moving into a new home wasn't just the greatest what with an Easter vacation pending just three weeks after the big exodus from B-ville — a daughter's graduation from college topping off those 10 days in the south — two daughters moving back home after nine months at school — a garage sale that we've just GOTTA hold — and our first grandchild on the June horizon.

I think the whole solution would be — give up vacations, don't attend commencements, keep the kids at home, forget the sale (and just give the trash pick-up man a big thrill) and . . . no, we just couldn't reschedule our little whippersnapper.

Getting back to the gist of this week's intro — time, time, time — that seems to be the missing ingredient. And what do you say when new acquaintances (trying to make you feel welcome) call and say "Come on over, I just baked a coffee cake plus we're digging out flowers and would like to share them with you." Hm-m-m? That took care of one evening we thought was free. I guess it's just good that we do live a mighty, mighty flexible life, someone with a schedule would go MAD!

Ah but then — our new place is certainly worth the work and reorganization! Each time I walk in that front door I am heard to exclaim "I LOVE THIS HOUSE!" And Susie tells people she has never seen her mother so happy. I am — I LOVE it!

But want to hear some of the things we're having to get used to in our new community? Well, for one, the utter quiet after dark. We've all read the phrase "the silence was deafening" and for the first few nights, that very silence kept waking us up. No trains or railroad crossing bells (utter bliss), no jets drifting in low for landings, no power boats growling from a nearby lake, no sailors dragging their noisy boat trailers down a rutty road.

Then, too, we have to get used to the fact that BG doesn't tear out of the house everytime the fire siren blows (although we ARE guilty of yelling "FIRE WHISTLE" to be funny.) The phone seldom rings (what a blessing) and we actually get a little thrill when it DOES. And although I don't see a familiar face as I grocery shop it's kinda fun being anonymous for a change. Never have I ever been the non-native in my environment and it's a whole new bag of beans, let me tell you.

We've a new list of favorite songs for you this week which we want you to ponder over a bit. The contributor, a resident of Belleville, wishes to remain "incognito" and says to just let readers guess what AGE group she's in. — she feels her choices will be a dead give-away to her era.

Here are the tunes which make her feel happy, sad, nostalgic, etc.
Swanee River . . . My Old Kentucky Home . . . When I Grow Too Old to Dream . . . White Christmas . . . Battle Hymn of the Republic . . . I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen . . . Mother McCree . . . Beautiful Isle of Somewhere . . . My Wild Irish Rose . . . Roaming in the Gloaming . . . Where the River Shannon Flows . . . Michigan, My Michigan.

EVER WONDER where the old adage "The Big Cheese" got its beginnings? Britishers voyaging to the East in the 19th century brought home some fascinating souvenirs . . . verbal ones! Among them was an ancient Persian word — "chiz" — which translated as "thing". Chiz (pronounced "cheese") had already traveled to India where it became popular Anglo-Indian slang for THE most important topic of the day. Chic Londoners eagerly adopted the familiar-sounding word as an idiom for whatever was currently the height of fashion. (On the other hand something lacking style was "cheesy!") So popular did the import become — on both sides of the Atlantic — that by the 1920's "the big cheese" (or "the real cheese") was a flip way of pointing out a top-ranking object or person.

For years we'd heard people rave about the azaleas and azalea festivals in the South but until this year had never realized the praise was falling far short of the flowers' worth.

On the one rainy day we had on vacation, the distaff side decided to wile away the showers at Southern Pines and Pinehurst where we also had lunch at a quaint little place our hostess had been to and thought unique.

Well, never in my life have I seen such a profusion of blooms — not only those brilliant pink and coral azaleas but masses of dogwood in snowy white and subtle pinks. We all were agape (and almost speechless) at the magnificence we were beholding street after street after street.

Everywhere we looked there was the greatest abundance of colorful trees and bushes we'd ever seen. It was absolutely breathtaking!

We'd glimpsed smatterings of dogwood, the mērest hints, along the freeways to Florida but never realized what beauties they would become when cultured a bit and planted in massive groupings. They and their azalea kin just have to be the answer to the Madelyn Murray O'Hairs of this world.

One of the greatest boons to a newcomer has to be the Welcome Wagon organization. The local hostess, Pat, called on me a couple weeks after we'd settled in. Not only did she have some lovely gifts (and certificates for even more) from local merchants, but she was able to hand me lists of clubs, churches, events, facilities, etc. and answer a few questions, too.

When you're completely "foreign" to an area, every little bit helps and it was a most enjoyable coffee break getting to know someone who, herself, had been a newcomer just a short time back.

Betty Moore of Romulus wrote recently to say she really enjoys trying the new recipes we run each week and that her family had especially liked the ham loaf.

"After Easter every year, we seem to have more ham than we know what to do with and you sure get sick of ham sandwiches after awhile. I fixed the ham loaf you printed and everyone really liked it. We all read "potpourri" every week and missed it when you were on vacation.

I, too, would like to share a "goody" with you, one I made for the first time for our Easter breakfast. Hope you like it."

Ray Flemings honored on 25th anniversary

A reception celebrating the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fleming was held April 22 at Detroit Metro Holiday Inn of Romulus. Life-long members of the community, the couple resides at 42651 E. Huron River Dr., Belleville.

Hosts and hostesses at the party were the Fleming children: Rayleen and her husband, Donald Haydon, Dan, Robert and Pat, and also Ed and Doretha McKelvey of Belleville, Mrs. Fleming's parents.

For the occasion the room was decorated in spring colors and silver bells with the focal point being two mannequins garbed in the couple's wedding dress and suit. "Once Upon a Time" — the life story of the Flemings — was presented in pictorial style with the wedding album also on display. A 3-tiered cake topped with a yellow bell and flowers served as centerpiece at the bridal table.

For the special occasion Mrs. Fleming donned a pale lavender street-length dress with a chiffon overlay and pinned her orchid corsage at the shoulder.

Members from the 1954 wedding party in attendance were Jim Fleming and Jerry McKelvey, who had been best man and usher, respectively, and Alice Atwell, the soloist.

On her wedding day, April 23, 1954, Mrs. Fleming was Betty McKelvey of Denton. She and her spouse exchanged vows at the Denton Methodist Church which is now Faith United Methodist Church where they are listed as members. The Flemings are also affiliated with the Belleville Band Boosters. A tool and die maker for the Ford Motor Company, Mr. Fleming served with the U.S. Navy. His wife, a homemaker, held the title "Cherry Pie Queen of Michigan" the year they were married. In their spare time the Flemings enjoy camping.

be taken for one hour of credit, if desired. It is an audio-visual introduction to the cultures, sights, sounds and handicrafts of Spain and various Latin American countries. A bilingual approach will be taken, according to Rosalyn Biderman, instructor for the class.

The class begins Wednesday, May

2 (tonight) and will be offered in Room 3806 of the College's Student Center Building. Registration for the class may be completed beforehand at the College or at the first session of the class.

Registration particulars are available by calling WCC staff at 973-3548.

Now Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Beauchamp

Sisters share altar date at St. Francis

After a week-long honeymoon at Disney World in Florida, the newlywed Jack Harris took up residence at 43525 Willis Rd., Belleville. Carol Kathryn Gannon became

Mrs. Harris on April 21 sharing her wedding day with her sister, Jillaine Marie Gannon who exchanged vows with Dan Beauchamp of St. Clair.

MR. AND MRS. DAN BEAUCHAMP AND MR. AND MRS. JACK HARRIS

The Rev. Ray Radamacher and The Rev. Larry Delaney presided at the double wedding at six thirty in the evening at St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church in Ann Arbor.

Given in marriage by their brother, Patrick Gannon of Ypsilanti, the two brides are the daughters of Mrs. L.J. Gannon of 5376 Textile Rd., Ypsilanti.

Music for the ceremony was played by Gerry Hubbard at the organ and sung by Mrs. Susan Bell and Noel George.

For her wedding day Carol chose to wear a toe-touching off-white creation designed with a high lace neckline and bishop sleeves embellished with matching lace.

Medallions of lace framed her face and secured her silk illusion veil which was cut in mid-back length. Orchids, stephanotis and tiny star flowers, formed in semi-cascade fashion, completed her bridal finery.

Jillaine was gownned in an A-line dress with a stand-up lace collar over an illusion neckline. Spires of lace frosted the slim skirt and long sleeves. She, too, chose a mantilla type veil which drifted to fingertip length, and carried an arrangement of orchids, stephanotis and Boston fern.

Honor attendants were Cindy Burch of Elk Rapids, who attended Carol, and Mrs. Karen Hinkley of Manchester, who served Jillaine.

They were dressed in mint green qiana frocks trimmed with off-white macrame yokes and carried bouquets of silk flowers surrounding single candles.

Their bridesmaids, wearing identical mint green ensembles, were Mrs. Norma Beauchamp of Ypsilanti; Mary Beauchamp of Ann Arbor; Jacquelyn Gannon of Ypsilanti; Mrs. Susan Holdaway-Heys of Ann Arbor; Mrs. Marley Pagel of Manchester; Gail Southwell of Ann Arbor; Wendy Squelch of Washington State and Dawn Vollink of Ann Arbor.

Shannon Elizabeth Gannon of Ypsilanti was flowergirl and Heath Pagel of Manchester carried out the role of ringbearer.

Jack Harris, the son of Mrs. Jack Harris of Port Charlotte, Fla., formerly of Belleville, asked his brother, Robert Harris of Flint, to be best man. David Beauchamp of Ypsilanti assumed the duties of best man for Dan Beauchamp, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beauchamp of St. Clair.

The corps of ushers included Steve Ahles of Southgate; Gordon Ashley of Roseville; Richard Bommarita of St. Clair Shores; Joseph Gannon of Ypsilanti; Jim Gathier of Redford; Richard Kiessel of Belleville; Richard Pauly of Pigeon and Michael Rougensas of St. Clair.

A dinner-dance reception honoring the four newlyweds was held at Roma's of Ann Arbor. Jillaine and Dan spent their week-long honeymoon in north-eastern Canada and are now at home at 2704 Glenbridge Ct., Ann Arbor.

The new Mrs. Harris graduated from Western Michigan University and is now a home economics teacher at Lincoln High School. Her husband received his education at Northern Michigan University where he affiliated with Theta Ki Epsilon. He, too, is in education and teaches at Belleville's South Junior High School.

A graduate of Eastern Michigan University, the new Mrs. Beauchamp is an instructor at Washtenaw Community College. She is a member of Sigma Kappa Sorority. An alumnus of the University of Michigan, her husband is now with Safeguard Business Systems.

The rehearsal dinner, given by the parents of the two bridegrooms, was held at Glencoe Hills Clubhouse in Ann Arbor. The buffet was prepared and served by the Culinary Arts Department of Washtenaw Community College under the direction of Jim Beaton.

June wedding set

The engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Pamela J. Lanier, is announced by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lanier of 380 Rustic Lane, North, Belleville. Her fiancé, Timothy A. Tibbs, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tibbs of 6 Carriage Lane, Belleville. The bride-elect, who has chosen a June 2 altar date at Immanuel Baptist Church in Ypsilanti, is a 1975 graduate of Garden City East High School. She is employed at Guys and Gals Nu-Yu Beauty Salon of Belleville. A 1977 Lincoln High School alumnus, the prospective bridegroom works for the Ford Motor Company.

Seventy-nine — and I'm going swimming

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ina Lunde is one of Belleville's most active senior citizens. As one of the many activities afforded that group, she has taken a class in creative writing and in the following story gives us her impression of one day in the life of a senior citizen.)

By INA LUNDE

Stretching my arms high over my head, I looked out my bedroom window at the sun shining ever so brightly and thought "How nice, the trip to Huron School this morning will be delightful." Belonging to senior citizens groups these days is certainly a privilege and has such unusual opportunities — creative writing, swimming, drama and history being some of the classes made available for our age group.

Today was swimming day and it is such fun. Almost 100 people take advantage of this class each Wednesday from September to June.

"Silly," I thought "to dress completely and then undress when I get to the school. I'll just put my swimming suit on under my outer garments and away I'll go." It is just 10 o'clock in the A.M., so the drive is very pleasant. I stop on the way to pick up my friend Mary who attends classes with me. She would never go in the water until last year when I begged her to go to the class with me, so here she is enjoying it as much as I am.

We reach the school and proceed to find a locker for our clothes. This is always a problem as the young girls at the school are always the first there and all the long lockers are taken. But we say, no problem, the short lockers suit us alright, as we push our big winter coats into them.

"Oh, dear, my back is bad this morning," comes drifting across the top of the lockers from some one undressing over there. I look at Mary and she winks at me with a sly look on her face, as if to say "ditto." Then we both laugh and go on to the shower room. Here we hear squealing as the cold water hits our warm bodies. This is all in the game and we go on into the pool room. Here we check with the pool supervisor who keeps good tabs on all of us. After all, we do get grade cards each semester and what could we tell our grandchildren if we received bad grades? Ho!

The water is chilly so I call to Mary, "Come on, get in down to your neck quick, then the shock will be over," and so we go down the steps gingerly. Most of the real swimmers jump in first but we are a little bit on the timid side and take it slowly.

Now comes the fun. Our swimming teacher begins the pool exercises and she has no mercy. It is the count of one to 15 for every exercise and when we get through we are minus energy and breath.

"Do it!" she says and we do just that.

I call to Mary, "Let's go to the whirlpool while there aren't many people there," so we go over to the most wonderful whirlpool we have ever had the pleasure of being in. It seats 13 people and the hot medicated water takes the ache and tightness out of our bodies.

"Call me in 10 minutes," I tell Mary as she curls down against the gurgling, swirling direct pressure of the water. "Hold tight," she answers, "or you'll end up off the seat and on the bottom." This is so true and our bodies respond to the wonderful action of the water. Everyone is so friendly and the tales we hear about "your knee, her shoulder, my elbow or the middle of my back" are hilarious. Oh, to have a tape recorder there and play it back some time for real entertainment.

Honestly I believe the world troubles might be solved if we could get the "powers that be" in a whirlpool together, for 15 minutes.

Out into the pool again and the big rubber balls come into play. Now if you treasure your life or head, you will get over to the side of the pool away from the antics.

"Come on, Mary let's go down to the deeper water." She holds my hand as we go down to the rope dividing the shallow water from the deep end, "We'll be a little safer there," I remark.

Several of these older people have learned to swim just since last fall, saying they had never been able to swim before. This is beautiful. Now me, I am just satisfied to remain a paddler and enjoy the water at the shallow end.

Coming out of the pool, back to the shower room, someone screams "I'm frozen!" and from under the shower comes a squeal "Oh where is the warm water?" Just like kids I think. But we enjoy the conversation from each locker aisle.

All at once one of the ladies lets out with "Good gosh, I forgot to bring my clothes to get dressed in," what on earth am I going to do?" I quickly looked for mine as I had done the same as she. We had come from home in just our suits under our outer garments, and now she had no undies. Thank goodness mine were in my tote bag, but our concern now was what was she to do?

To make the story short, she went right home, towel wrapped and pinned as best she could around her body, coat buttoned up to her neck. Her remark as she left us was, "Hope nobody stops me on the way home." We also hoped so, believe me.

Getting dressed is a terrible job, everything is so tight and sticky to say nothing about the joints of our bodies, refusing to give or bend to our needs, but that is life we keep telling ourselves.

Now for lunch before we have our literature class. This is a joy. The junior high cafeteria cooks prepare our lunches and we are always welcomed with a smile and a jolly remark of some kind.

The companionship we have at each class is truly satisfying and the incidents that happen there could be a story by themselves. Wish we could keep them in our minds to bring out sometime when it would fit the occasion. This would take keeping a note book handy at all times — because getting older means "taking and making notes" to keep tab on things. Ha!

Lunch over we take a short walk from one building to another and being such a nice day, we enjoy it very much. The auditorium is very beautiful and we scatter around to just the seat we want, checking again with our attendance friend. She is a joy, knows all of us by this time and recognizes us with a smile or nod.

If the theatre is warm and the picture on the quiet side, we look around and here and there a head is nodding in sleep, soon to be aroused by a companion or a sudden noise in the picture. Then a good laugh at themselves and we all enjoy a very interesting show.

Lights go on again, everyone stretches and greets the others with "good show and an afternoon well spent" or some cheery remark as we all go on our special ways, looking forward to another exciting day next week.

"Pile in," I say to Mary and we are off for home, tired but relaxed and happy.

Recipes to try in your microwave

Microwave cooking is magic because of its speed as well as the way in which it cooks. This new way cooks foods inside and out at the same time by means of microwaves. These energy waves bounce off the oven walls and are absorbed by the food. This causes molecules in the food to vibrate, which in turn produces heat from friction and results in quick cooking.

The following recipes were tested in a microwave oven: full power was 675 watts; half power, 340 watts. If your microwave oven differs from this wattage, it's easy to convert your oven's capability to its proper cooking time. Simply multiply the watts in this series by the prescribed cooking time, then divide by the watts of your oven. The answer is the cooking time it takes in your microwave.

Quick way for bacon and quiche

Microwave Quiche

Crumble remaining bacon into bottom of pastry shell. Combine eggs, cream, green onions, cheese and pepper. Pour into pastry shell over bacon. Microwave uncovered on half power, turning a quarter turn every 4 minutes until knife inserted in center comes out clean, about 16 minutes. Let stand uncovered 5 minutes before serving. Garnish with reserved bacon slice.

Take care of hair

When your career may hang by a hair, you take good care of it.

That's the message from a recent survey of male models at the Wilhelmina Models Inc. in New York.

But the care is basic. When asked what they do to keep their hair looking good, the vast majority responded "keep it clean."

And that means daily shampooing for more than half of them, with most of the others in the every two day category.

Baby Shampoo came in a winner, with three-fourths citing the gentleness. The no tears formula was another plus mentioned by the respondents.

Only about half expressed real concern about hair loss, but most of those who didn't are young or have thick hair. A number of them, not surprisingly, cited their career as the basis of their concern.

The majority of the models believe that using gentle products, like baby shampoo, might help reduce hair loss by decreasing damage to hair.

About three-fourths cited blow dryers as harmful because they dry the hair and cause split ends — however, more than half of the male models use blow dryers.

Maybe that's why use of conditioners rated so high. More than three-fourths of the models use some kind, from egg white to expensive male-oriented brands.

About half of the surveyed models were between the ages of 25 and 35, with the others equally divided between the under 25 category and the 36 to 45 category.

MIGRAINE HEADACHES

"AGONY AROUND THE CORNER"

PAIN AND PANIC... THE MIGRAINE SYNDROME

The lights of oncoming cars may seem extra bright, nausea wells up and your temples begin to pound. Panic sweeps over you... Oh No! Not tonight of all nights!

If the symptoms seem all too familiar, you are probably experiencing the warning signals of impending migraine attack. Migraine pain is not always limited to headache. Called by doctors the 'migraine equivalents', other side effects can include: chest and abdominal pains, vomiting, diarrhea, swelling in various parts of the body, fever, pains in arms and legs and rapid mood changes. A study of migraine and its long-range effects shows that often there is a general disintegration of the victim's personality. It is the FEAR that an attack is lurking to spoil an important occasion that contributes the most to the onset of self doubt and mood changes.

IS IT THE REAL THING?

Migraine sufferers belong to their own exclusive club... and the dues are high. If your occasional headache is caused by drinking or smoking, stale air, eye strain, smog or constipation, then you are one of the lucky ones. Not so fortunate are the sufferers from chronic tension headache... painful, but not as serious as vascular or migraine headache.

THIS COULD BE THE START OF SOMETHING BIG

Migraine headaches almost never just "go away." Usually, they worsen, disrupting home life and social relationships and adversely affecting performance on the job. Fearing the pain and incapacity of a migraine attack, the sufferer begins to mistrust himself and lose confidence in his ability. Others may begin to mistrust him, opportunities slip by and life on the home front is strained as the family attempts to cope with the frequent migraine mood changes.

WHY ME?

Millions of Americans spend countless dollars on headache remedies, even though they know that these remedies will probably give little or no relief, for migraine headaches are caused primarily by expansion of the arteries and pinching of the nerves of the neck and head. Since the nerves and blood vessels pass through small openings and canals between the neck vertebrae, a misalignment pinches those nerves and vessels leading to the head, causing excruciating pain.

WHERE TO TURN

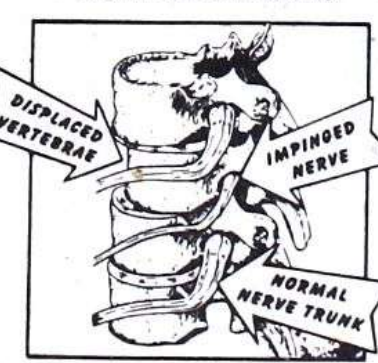

Chiropractic researchers have developed special nerve tests to determine the precise point in the neck at which the arteries and nerves are being blocked. In difficult or unusual cases, chiropractors often elect to use X-ray machines to pinpoint the location of misalignment. Many thousands of X-rays have proved that the migraine trouble develops when one or more of the tiny neck bones is misaligned or forced out of normal position.

Your chiropractor, a specialist of the spine and nerves, uses all the aids of modern technology to track down the source of the problem. It is usually a simple matter to release the pinched nerves and blood vessels and banish the migraine forever.

YOUR HEAD IS IN YOUR HANDS

No one who has ever suffered a migraine attack would willingly repeat the experience... and you don't have to. A quick, painless and inexpensive visit to your chiropractor can mean relief on the way. Your doctor has devoted many years to the study of the conditions that cause migraine. To determine whether or not you suffer from migraine headaches, recognize the symptoms and seek help immediately from your Doctor of Chiropractic.

GOOD PSYCHOLOGY

Those who understand young people say that a good way to teach them responsibility is not merely telling them they should be more responsible, or even assigning them chores, but by getting them interested in a responsible project, on their school vacations, such as recycling aluminum.

This can be good for their characters, look great on college or job application resumes and can help them earn money, since Reynolds Aluminum Recycling will pay 17 cents a pound for recyclable aluminum. For information about recycling, call toll-free 800-243-6000. In Connecticut, it's toll-free, 1-800-882-6500.

Spring Art Festival celebrates creative spirit

On Saturday and Sunday, the Spring Arts Festival will celebrate spring and the creative spirit.

One hundred members of the University Artists and Craftsmen Guild will fill the University of Michigan-Dearborn Fieldhouse with the new bloom of their work. Spring images will emerge in the delicate blossoms of Oriental brush painting; hand-carved wooden birds; ceramic apple mugs; a stained glass, 3-dimensional dragon fly; and a parade of soft fabric stuffed ducklings, chicks and other animal friends.

With strong concern for quality workmanship and function as well as beauty, other members will present matching ceramic tea and wine sets, bread pans, pie plates, casseroles and place settings; leather garments, handbags and slippers; woodenware; an intriguing variety of sterling silver, gold, cloisonne, enamel, feather and hand-painted porcelain jewelry and handmade clothing. Of equal importance is art work which beautifies the environment but is not used.

Guild rules for exhibiting at art fairs encourage creative exploration and growth in both functional and decorative work. Many views of the natural world and artistic visions are developed in watercolor, oil, and acrylic painting; clay and metal sculpture; stained glass; photography; glass blowing; woodcarving; and assemblage.

The guild is committed to the promotion, development and cultivation of contemporary arts and crafts. Located at the University of Michigan, the guild has a special commitment to the presentation of artwork to the UM community and the development of student artists. It sponsors three other annual art fairs, including the Annual Summer Arts Festival held in July.

Musical entertainment and food service contribute to the creation of this new event for the community of Dearborn. There is no admission charge.

Spring Arts Festival hours are Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from 12 noon to 5 p.m. The U-M Dearborn Fieldhouse is located on Evergreen Road, just across from the Fairlane Town Center.

Ford Chorus sings

The Ford Chorus will present "1979 Spring Holiday," a nostalgic musical production, at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday in the auditorium of the Ford World Headquarters, Michigan Avenue at the Southfield Freeway in Dearborn.

The first two segments of the production will feature well-known sacred and popular secular songs. The third segment, entitled "The Second Time Around Showtime" will feature highlights from seven Ford chorus musical productions — "Annie Get Your Gun," "Guys and Dolls," "Lil' Abner," "Anything Goes," "The Pajama Game," "Little Mary Sunshine" and "Of Thee I Sing."

Director of the Ford Chorus, Ray Kooi, will be stepping down later this year after 33 years, when he retires from the Ford Motor Company Fund. He explained why he selected the songs. "They are among my favorites over the years, and I'd like to take the chorus through them one more time."

Frank Jakes will return as stage director, and the dance sequences will be choreographed by Marge Cole and Louise McPhee.

Tickets for the three shows can be obtained from chorus members, or by calling Delores Samide at 322-8700 between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Tickets cost $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for senior citizens and children under 12 years of age.

Special evenings return

Reservations may be made by the general public to visit the Detroit Institute of Arts on Wednesday evenings during the current special exhibition on the work of Isamu Noguchi, the Detroit Fountain sculptor.

Advance time-and-date reservations may be made to tour the show only or to visit the show and enjoy a candlelight and wine supper in Kresge Court.

Calls may be made to the museum ticket office at 832-2730 to reserve the Wednesday evening exhibition tour for $2 per person or to book the tour and dinner for $15 each.

Dr. Audley Grossman, head of visitors' reception for the museum, said the Wednesday evenings are being offered because of the popularity of the format during the Second Empire show earlier this year. They were reserved SRO during the run of the French exhibition.

High Point Center hosts special fest

Ann Arbor will continue to add to its reputation as a major cultural community in the state by playing host to a number of fine young artists at Michigan's first Very Special Arts Festival May 12.

High Point Center, located west of Ann Arbor, will be the site of one of the largest gatherings of impaired individuals participating in creative arts experiences to ever occur in Michigan.

More than 600 special education students will give performances in music, dance and drama, as well as display their contributions in visual arts. Work in creative literature, poetry, filmmaking and puppetry also will be presented.

A project of the National Committee, Arts for the Handicapped, Very Special Arts Festivals will be held in 45 states during 1979. The major purpose of the festival program is to demonstrate the impact of the arts on enhancing the basic learning skills of impaired students. It is estimated that only 12 percent of the nation's handicapped children have ever had the opportunity to participate in art, music, dance or drama activities.

People throughout the nation are recognizing the arts can provide uniquely effective ways of teaching impaired individuals to improve coordination and manipulative skills, increase responsiveness to others and to the environment in which they exist, plus increase communication and self-reliance.

For children who have difficulty in communicating, because of speech and hearing disorders or emotional problems, the arts provide a unique framework for reaching out to others in a non-threatening atmosphere. Creative arts experiences allow the non-verbal, or withdrawn child the opportunity of participating with others in a group activity without being forced to rely on verbal skills.

Each Very Special Arts Festival includes year-round experiences for handicapped children and their teachers such as artists in the classroom, in-service teachers workshops, trips to cultural events, and increased participation in arts education programs. The Festival is intended to stimulate, supplement and reinforce the inclusion of the arts in the regular year-round instructional program of sponsoring agencies and participating schools.

Sponsoring the festival are the National Committee Arts for the Handicapped, Michigan Council for the Arts, Michigan Foundation for the Arts, Michigan Alliance for Arts Education and the Michigan Department of Education.

Festival hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

2. In Memoriam

In loving memory of JERRY D. SCOVILLE, Who passed away May 1, 1978. I said a prayer for you today and know God must have heard — I felt the answer in my heart although he spoke no word! I didn't ask for wealth or fame (I knew you wouldn't mind) I asked Him to send treasures of a far more lasting kind! I asked that He'd be near you at the start of each new day, To grant you peace and blessings and your brother to share your way! I asked for happiness for you in all things great and small — But it was for His loving care I prayed the most of all! Sadly missed by his Wife, Children, Grandchildren, Parents, Sisters and their families and friends.
